ROOSEVELT O. K. GIVEN CAPITAL BONUS MARCH

"New Deal" Gesture to Provide Essentials for Visitors.

AGREEMENT PLACES LIMIT OF SIX DAYS

House Members Speak at B. E. F. Mass Meeting in Southwest Park.

By EDMUND G. MONK.

The Roosevelt administration opened the District's gates yesterday to an "orderly" bonus army scheduled to gather here next Saturday to demand more from its native land than did the tatterdemalion legions who finally left the Capitol last year with troops and tear gas at their heels.

The "new deal" gesture came as a climax as a series of conferences between Col. Louis M. Howe, secretary to President Roosevelt and the veterans' national liaison committee, composed of five veterans of the World War and of the bonus campaign here last year.

Under the plans of the committee, approximately 9,000 veterans will come here next week to ask immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates, restoration of disability benefits eliminated under the economy act, and immediate remedial relief for the unemployed and farmers.

Charges Reds Back March.

Lieut. Horace Lineberg, head of the Police Department Crime Prevention Bureau and commander of the Washington's Police Department's American Legion Post, charged last night that the bonus convention scheduled for next Saturday was "entirely Communistic by inspiration."

The scheduled mass meeting of the B. E. F. last night was held down to 200 veterans with inclement weather intervening at the Third street and Missouri avenue southwest park meeting allowed by park police officials.

Representatives Lundeen and Shoemaker, of Minnesota, delivered inspiratory addresses to the assemblage and then Harold Foulkrod, torch-tongued veteran orator, ripped the administration and practically everything else to pieces—excluding the few who advocate general veterans relief as their chief claim to legislative occupancy.

Miss Perkins Asks Minimum Pay Plan

Makes Last-Minute Plea for Inclusion in Short Week Measure.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Perkins yesterday made a last-minute plea to the House Labor Committee for inclusion of a minimum wage provision in the shorter work week bill.

As the committee prepared to conclude its hearings yesterday before taking up the various 30-hour work week bills in executive session Monday, Miss Perkins sent up for the record a letter saying:

"Minimum wage experience has demonstrated that not only are the lowest wages raised, but the higher wages have also been supported."

Iowa Farmers to Get No Help From Capitol

Prof. Wilson Named to Direct Program for Curtailing Crops.

(Associated Press.)

Prof. M. L. Wilson, of Montana State College at Bozeman, will direct the program for curtailing production and increasing prices of wheat in the administration of the farm relief bill.

It was learned yesterday that, under instructions of Secretary Wallace, Wilson has undertaken a detailed survey of the position of the crop.

Wilson was an author of the domestic allotment plan for the regulation of crop acreage and during the campaign served as one of President Roosevelt's chief agriculture advisers. He is in Washington and has been assigned an office at the Department of Agriculture.

He contemplates quick action. A group of representatives of wheat organizations conferred with him yesterday and asked that action on this crop be taken first because its planting is advanced further than any other crop, being now nearly complete.

Strike Called Must Run Course; Smith Sees Legislation Doom.

(United Press.)

Congress blocked the last avenue of hope yesterday for Iowa's rebellious farmers.

The agricultural strike—called for next Saturday—will be allowed to run its course, according to farm leaders on Capitol Hill. Any attempt to placate the farmers with legislation of their own choosing is doomed to defeat, Chairman Smith, of the Senate Agricultural Committee, predicted.

He referred specifically to the Simpson amendment to the Roosevelt farm relief bill. Farmers insist it must be included in the bill; Secretary of Agriculture Wallace insists it shall not. The amendment calls for the Federal Government to guarantee to the farmer cost of production, plus a reasonable profit on that portion of his crops raised for domestic consumption.

Next week the House will vote on whether the Simpson amendment shall be retained, and leaders expect it to be thrown out of the bill. Then

$60,000 IN DAMAGES AWARDED TO SCHALL

Son of Minnesota Senator Gets Record Verdict in Standard Oil Suit.

Douglas Schall, son of Senator D. Schall, of Minnesota, was given a judgment of $60,000, with interest, by a District Supreme Court jury late last night for injuries suffered in September, 1930, when his automobile was struck by a truck of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey at East Riverdale, Md. The oil company also must pay the court costs.

It is estimated that the verdict is tantamounts to a judgment of $80,000, which is believed to be the largest ever returned in a similar case in a District of Columbia court. He sued for $90,000.

Schall suffered permanent injuries in the accident that forced him to withdraw from the United States Naval Academy. As a result of his injuries, his right leg is shorter than the other and his left arm is almost useless. Forced to give up his proposed naval career, Schall has taken up law and is now a student at Georgetown University's School of Law.

With Schall at the time of the accident was Mrs. Alice Ponce, wife of a well-known jockey. She also was seriously injured and has a suit pending against the oil company.

The case went on trial before Justice Joseph W. Cox ten days ago. It was given to the jury about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. When a verdict had not been reached after several hours' deliberation, Justice Cox ordered the jury to continue its deliberations and bring in a sealed verdict. It had been expected that if a verdict was reached last night it would not be made known until 10 a. m. today.

But when the jury announced it had reached a verdict at about 11:30 last night, Justice Cox was called at his htoel apartment and he decided to return to the courtroom to receive it.

House to Be Ready To Leave June 1

Speaker Rainey Says Date of Adjournment Will Depend on Senate.

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Rainey said at his press conference yesterday that the "House will complete the President's emergency program and be ready for adjournment of the special session June 1."

"Whether we get out of here June 1 depends upon the Senate," Rainey added.

Next week, he said, President Roosevelt will send to Congress his request for authority to negotiate reciprocal tariffs in connection with the forthcoming international conference at London, and shortly after that, the President will submit his public works program.

"The initial bond issue for the public works program will be $500,000,000," Rainey said.

WORKER DISMISSAL BY STATES FOUGHT

House Body May Be Asked to Drop Quota Clause From Supply Bill.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Opposition to dismissal of Federal employes on a State-apportionment basis, as proposed in the pending independent offices supply bill, may force a special meeting of the House Deficiencies Appropriations Committee to consider dropping the clause.

This virtually was admitted last night by House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan, as a well-organized movement got under way on both sides of the Capitol to defeat the proposal to squeeze workers from over-quota States, the District included, out of the Government service.

The clause is held to endanger the jobs of thousands of Federal employes now in the apportioned civil service.

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat), Virginia, former chairman of the independent offices appropriations subcommittee, said he will sponsor the effort to eliminate the controversial clause from the bill if Mr. Buchanan convenes the subcommittee.

Under a rigid rule reported by the House Rules Committee, no amendments can be made to the bill unless supported by the House Appropriations Committee. Thus it will take initial committee action if the clause it to be stricken in the House.

"It never should have been put in the bill in the first place," Representative Woodrum said last night. "It defeats the whole purpose of the 30-year retirement provision."

Representative Buchanan said he too saw no merit in the proposal. "I think efficiency should be the only standard by which employes are retained or dropped from the service."

The clause is thought to have been

ICKES ASSAILS UNFAIR BIDS ON ROAD CEMENT

Files Complaints Saying Manufacturers Submit Identical Prices.

TRADE COMMISSION TO PROBE CHARGES

Interior Secretary Asserts Situation Cuts Competition on Federal Projects.

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Charles H. March of the Federal Trade Commission said last night that Secretary Ickes had filed several complaints with the commission, contending that "practically all the leading cement manufacturers in the United States" were submitting identical bids for Federal road work, and that there was "no competition."

March said the complaints made by the Secretary of Interior were that since all the bids were alike the bidding was "unfair."

The Federal Trade Commission has docketed the complaints for investigation. It was indicated that some time would elapse before a report could be made.

Industry Already Studied.

The texts of the complaints submitted by Ickes were not made public, and it could not be ascertained immediately if the Interior Secretary had charged that the identical bids for Government work might indicate that the manufacturers concerned were acting as a "trust."

The Trade Commission already has gathered extensive data concerning the practices of the cement industry. At the request of the Senate a full investigation was made into the industry.

This investigation has been completed, and the commission's report probably will be submitted shortly to the Senate. It has never been made public, however, and its contents will not be made known unless the Senate makes it available.

Dam Bids "Too High."

Reports that the complaints by Secretary Ickes concerned also the cement bids submitted on Boulder Dam were not confirmed by Chairman March. He said he believed they had centered upon bids for highway construction.

Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation, reported last night that bids for cement to be used in the construction of Boulder Dam had been rejected last week by Secretary Ickes because they were "too high."

Mead said he was not informed, however, as to whether all the bids had been identical. He said he did not know that Ickes had made complaints against the cement companies to the Trade Commission.

Over-Night Cruise Is Roosevelt Plan

Will Leave White House Today After Luncheon for Herr Schacht.

If he finds it feasible, President Roosevelt will make his first overnight cruise in the Sequoia today and tomorrow, returning to Washington tomorrow afternoon for his broadcast tomorrow night.

The President hopes to leave the White House today after the luncheon to Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's economic envoy. Herr Schacht is not expected to accompany him on the trip.

In his radio address tomorrow night, the President will sketch his purposes in asking for those powers he has requested, but will not go into his method of using them.

Representative Burnham (Republican), California, said after a White House visit yesterday that President Roosevelt plans a trip to the Pacific Coast, by ship, as soon as the session of Congress, beginning next January, has ended.

Hitler's Spokesman Here for Conference With Roosevelt.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, envoy of Chancellor Hitler, arrived here yesterday to exchange views with President Roosevelt in advance of the world economic conference and gave voice to Germany's strong desire to see the conference succeed. Such an outcome has an especial interest for Germany, for the head of the German Reichsbank foreshadowed a possible default on the $1,000,000,000 long and short term German credits held by Americans unless Germany is able to dispose of her exports. He said:

"Germany will be unable to pay her debts unless she is able to export her goods."

At the same time that Dr. Schacht was being received here, President

SECURITY PUBLICITY BILL PASSES HOUSE

Measure to Compel Issuers to Tell Pertinent Facts Goes to Senate.

(Associated Press.)

Without so much as a record vote, the House late yesterday approved the Roosevelt idea of protecting the investing public by compelling publication of all pertinent facts in connection with new issues of securities.

It passed and sent along to the Senate a bill based upon the Chief Executive's recommendations, after five hours' debate and under procedure which prohibited any but committee amendments. Senate approval is virtually assured.

Only negligible opposition developed in the House and there was no demand for a roll-call vote.

Under the measure, drafted by Chairman Rayburn of the Interstate Commerce Committee the issuers of new securities will be required to lay before the Federal Trade Commission complete information on their corporate structure, finances, personnel, tangible and intangible property. Provisions are made for the prosecution of violators and of promoters of fraudulent issues. They would be held both civilly and criminally liable for violations.

34 PERSONS KILLED IN SOUTHERN STORM

300 Injured as Tornado Hits Alabama and South Carolina Sectors.

Birmingham, Ala., May 5 (A.P.).—Spring storms killed at least 34 persons in Alabama and South Carolina today, injured more than 300 and sent streams in the Mississippi Delta roaring back to flood stage.

A tornado that was cooked up in Arkansas yesterday started the assault and before dawn today a windstorm whipped through the important city of Demopolis, Ala., razed the nearby town of Helena and then whirled away to South Carolina, where it leveled the textile town of Belton. Seven were killed in that area. The storm then ripped across parts of Laurens and Greenville Counties, leaving 5 more dead.

At least 22 were killed in Alabama—11 at Helena, 7 at Brent, 4 at Demopolis.

Torrential rains followed the storm's path and threatened serious damage in the Mississippi Delta, where rivers already were swollen. The fall of the Tallahatchie River, which has been flooding for several weeks, was checked by the deluge. Highways were awash. Three feet of water stood in sections of Water Valley, Miss.

It was the second major Southern storm this week and the fourth since the middle of March. The death toll in the series of tornadoes exceeds 170.

The National Red Cross in Washington said five disaster relief workers had been sent to Helena, which was virtually demolished.

Many of the injured were hurt grievously and it was feared the death list would grow.

CHAMBER PLEDGES AID TO ROOSEVELT

Leaders of Business in Turn Seek Policies Likely to Revive Commerce.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Speaking through the annual convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, American business pledged its support to President Roosevelt yesterday in a broad-gauge program looking to industrial stabilization and the improvement of working conditions generally.

At the same time the business community asked in return that the Government assist in economic recovery by an honestly balanced budget and through the pursuance of policies calculated to revitalize business and banking confidence.

Adoption of a score or more of resolutions touching every phase of national and world economy—with the notable exception of war debts—signalized the concluding sessions of the chamber's twenty-first annual meeting.

Following closely upon the President's appeal for the vigorous cooperation of business and finance in "wise and sound" recovery measures, the resolution on industrial organization emphasized the necessity for Government action to encourage effective trade agreements looking to self-regulation, free of bureaucratic domination and control.

"Those best equipped to solve the problems of industry are those who

PEGGY SEEMS NOT HARMED

Father's Plan to Keep Word With Gang Goes Awry.

Harwichport, Mass., May 5 (A.P.).—Margaret (Peggy) McMath was returned alive to her father today after the payment of a ransom of about $80,000.

Negotiations leading to the recovery of the 10-year-old girl came through a ransom letter received Wednesday night and a mysterious contact subsequently established with the abductors.

Authorities said they understood the ransom demand was in the child's own handwriting.

The men who stole the girl from her schoolroom Tuesday afternoon and held her a prisoner for almost three days demanded and received a promise they would be given a 48-hour start in their flight.

Returned in Good Health.

By prearrangement, at 3 a. m. today, she was returned apparently in good health to her father aboard a boat owned by William Lee, a business associate.

Two other residents of Harwichport, one a garage owner, were also aboard the craft when the kidnapers gave up their hostage, after receiving the ransom money.

The father and his associates had intended to keep the little girl on the Lee boat until the 48 hours were up, fearing "dire threats" of what would happen if they broke their word of immunity.

But a "leak" occurred. Just before dusk settled over the harbor in front of the McMath home, Coast Guard boats closed in on the Lee craft and took off the child and her father. The first news of the girl's return developed when she was seen on a Coast Guard boat.

Money Guard Provided.

The story of how police broke through the wall of silence which the father and his friends had sought to erect was told tonight by State Commissioner of Public Safety Needham.

"Last night," he said, "the Merchants National Bank of Boston requested Capt. Bligh, of the State police, at the State House, to furnish an armed guard for the transportation of money.

"Capt. Bligh • • • sent Sergt. Delaney, armed and in plain clothes • • • Delaney returned to the State House about 7 o'clock this morning and reported to Bligh that he, in company with Mr. Bacon (president of the bank) and two other men had gone to Harwichport to the house of Mr. McMath conveying a sum of money which he believed to be $80,000.

"This information was reported promptly to us at Harwichport, whereupon Lieut. Sherlock and I went to

FOUR MEN INDICTED IN EXTORTION CASE

Quartet Charged as Result of Baltimore Kidnaping of Hendler Boy.

New York, May 5 (A.P.).—Four men were indicted today by the Federal grand jury on charges of violating the so-called Lindbergh act in attempting to extort $7,500 from L. Manuel Hendler, wealthy confectioner of Baltimore, Md.

The indictment charges conspiracy and attempted extortion by the use of the mails and by threats.

The recently enacted law provides a maximum penalty of 20 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Those indicted are Max Lipshitz, Hyman Goldfinger and Harry Surasky, who are under arrest in Baltimore awaiting removal to New York, and Lucian Fesco, who is held here in default of $15,000 bail.

The indictment makes no direct reference to the kidnaping last January of the confectioner's son, Albert Hendler, Johns Hopkins student, who was held for three hours before being released.

The grand jury acted after hearing three witnesses—the father and son, and Postoffice Inspector George Brill, of Baltimore.

Federal authorities charge the $7,500 was demanded of Hendler in two letters mailed from New York last month, which threatened death to either father or son, or both of them if the money were not paid.

The second letter promised that the writers would be "good thereafter" if no attempt were made to apprehend and punish them.

Mrs. Whitney's famous hunting team also will show, as will Bowling Green and Two Leggins, another pair of well known Whitney horses.

Another well known Virginia horse owner, Mrs. Robert C. Winmill, of Warrenton, is expected to make several entries and will probably be up on at least one personally.

Senators Nearer House View on Electric Tax

(Associated Press.)

A Senate Finance subcommittee yesterday approved with some revision the House tax bill provision transferring the 3 per cent electricity tax from the consumer to the producer.

Flying Races May Be Run Without N. A. A. Sanction

Air Derby Group Does Not Intend to Eliminate Two College Park Events Tomorrow as Demanded by Contest Committee.

Possibility that the Langley Day aviation program scheduled for tomorrow at College Park Airport under the auspices of the Washington Air Derby Association would be run without the official sanction of the National Aeronautic Association loomed last night when officials of the latter group outlined governing conditions that the local group "does not intend to meet."

Holding its regular monthly meeting, the contest committee of the N. A. A. yesterday "voted to sanction the races promoted by Chester H. Warrington, president of the Washington Derby Association, on condition that two of the proposed events be eliminated." The two races to which the N. A. A. objects are a "slow" race and a race for low powered airplanes. But while the N. A. A. officials state that these races are dangerous, Mr. Warrington points out that they have been approved by the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce and that it is planned to go ahead with the program as originally drawn up.

"Members of the contest committee of the N. A. A. waited until yesterday to state their conditions on which their body would sanction our local meet. And as yet I have received no official word from them of what they feel we must do to comply with their rules," Mr. Warrington said.

Close observers see in the local disputes a test of the national authority of the National Aeronautics Association which for many years has governed the conditions of air meets throughout the country. The sanction of the national air races and other meets held annually at which large numbers of pilots participate is involved.

Members of the contest committee of the N. A. A. involved in the dispute with the local group include William P. MacCracken, jr., George W. Lewis, former Senator Hiram Bingham, Amelia Earhart and others.

The Langley Day events will begin at noon tomorrow. Approximately 50 out-of-town pilots are expected here for the races. The public is invited to the field and there will be no admission charge, parking facilities also being provided.

$80,000 IS PAID AS RANSOM, M'MATHS' CHILD RETURNED

Mr. McMath's home, where we had an interview with Mr. Lee.

Girl's Return Disclosed.

"As a result of this interview and other information * * * we returned and had a second conference with Mr. Lee at the McMath home at noon.

"After the interview we were told the little girl had been delivered to the father the preceding night (spokesmen for the family said the actual hour was 3 a. m.) and the money paid and that in accordance with an agreement made with the kidnapers the little girl, the father, Cyril Buck and one Harold Sawyer were on the boat Bob (Lee's craft). * * *

"Upon receiving information of the party on the boat we at once left for Woods Hole, where Commander R. S. Hatch has by prearrangement reserved two speedboats for us."

Then he told of locating the "Bob," which appeared at first to him to be deserted, and taking off its passengers, including the father and daughter. He said his understanding was that the ransom money was paid on shore and not at sea.

Excited Groups Gather.

Word spread like fire through this little community after a group standing on the shore of the harbor spotted the unmistakable figure of "Peggy" on the deck of the Coast Guard boat.

The usual calm of Cape Cod folk vanished as they gathered in excited groups to point and talk and speculate. Women wept openly as they gave vent to their feelings of relief. The strain of the last three days, while searchers looked far and wide for trace of the girl, was suddenly ended.

But the scene quickly shifted. Out from the huddle of Coast Guard craft the boat bearing Margaret, her father and officials pushed its prow. The crowd on shore was mystified by the departure, but soon learned the boat was headed for Woods Hole, a Coast Guard base.

At Woods Hole, "Peggy," in a sailor's white watch cap and a blue sweater, was taken with her father and the rest of the party aboard the Coast Guard station ship.

Mrs. McMath was one of the few who knew during the day that her little daughter was safe and aboard the Lee boat, but she did not go out to see her at that time.

Mother and Child Reunited.

She arrived at Woods Hole by automobile tonight a few minutes before the Coast Guard boat bearing her kidnaped daughter docked, and waited for her child in the office of Commander Roderick S. Patch.

No outsiders were present at the reunion, but after a hasty lunch of hot soup and milk, mother and daughter, both radiantly happy, left by car for their home here with a State police escort.

In reply to a question, Gen. Needham said that McMath and Lee were voluntarily remaining with the investigators.

As the questioning of McMath and Lee by State police continued, Sergt. Harold Delaney, who accompanied George B. Bacon, Boston banker, and two others to the McMath home with the ransom money, arrived. President Bacon was en route from his Boston home, as was Ralph Snow, head of the Cape Cod Five Cents Savings Bank.

Mrs. McMath and her daughter arrived at the McMath home here from Woods Hole shortly before midnight.

May Leave Coast Today to Give Evidence in Means Case.

Los Angeles, May 5 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may take off early tomorrow on a direct flight to Washington, officials of the Transcontinental & Western Air Lines said today.

The flier is to testify at the trial of Gaston B. Means and Norman Whitaker, charged with taking $35,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean on the pretext that they could furnish information as to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby.

T. & W. A. officials said Lindbergh, their technical adviser, had canceled all engagements and was leaving a large part of his work here undone so that he might reach Washington early next week. He has been on an inspection tour.

Mr. Allen was a former student of Richard H. Miller and the late Charles W. Hawthorne. Roosevelt commented, "I am sure the President would like such a fine picture of the City of New York."

Indianapolis, May 5 (A.P.).—The national executive committee of the American Legion today approved a four-point policy toward veterans' legislation that includes "adequate compensation and hospitalization of all veterans with war-service-connected disabilities, without regard to financial status or other means of support."

The policy was drafted by National Commander Louis Johnson and a special American Legion committee. Final acceptance of it, however, must be made by the national convention, which will be held in Chicago October 2 to 5.

Pilot Dies, 2 Safe In Plane Crashes

Two Other Army Fliers in Texas Suffer Burns From Collision.

San Antonio, Tex., May 5 (A.P.).—In a series of accidents to Army fliers in Texas today one pilot was reported killed, two others escaped death in an air collision, and two mechanics were burned in a plane crash. Word was received that Lieut. Edmund C. Wolf, of Brooks Field, San Antonio, was killed in a crash near Devine, Tex. Capt. W. C. Gravely operations officer, left the field to investigate. Wolf was a former reporter for the Kansas City Star.

Two Randolph Field Army planes collided at an altitude of 1,600 feet four miles southeast of the airdrome, but both pilots, Lieut. O. C. George and Cadet H. S. Williams, landed safely.

Two mechanics from Fort Crockett, Galveston, Tex., were burned when a transport plane piloted by Lieut. Bogen overshot the field at Fort Clark and caught fire after crashing, military authorities were informed. The plane, carrying six men, was en route to California for maneuvers.

Patoka Reports Finding Of Pacific Ocean Peak

Commander Ralph B. Horner, U. S. N., commanding officer of the U. S. S. Patoka, now assigned to the naval transportation service en route from the navy yard, Seattle, to Dutch Harbor, Alaska, reported the finding of an uncharted peak in the Pacific Ocean at 11:13 p. m. Thursday night, it was announced yesterday at the Navy Department.

The Patoka, one and a half days out of Seattle, in a position about 200 miles west northwest of Cape Flattery and 65 miles off Cape Hook, Vancouver Island, reported feeling sudden vibrations of the ship while in a locality where charts indicated a depth of more than a thousand fathoms. Commander Horner, suspecting shoal waters, had soundings taken which showed only 11 to 15 fathoms. He stopped the ship and obtained two more soundings which confirmed the first results.

JOBS FOR RELEASED U. S. WORKERS GOAL

Roper Asks Chamber to Cooperate in Placement of Slash Victims.

Means whereby discharged Government employes could be taken into private business, radical reductions in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and the establishment of a council to act in cooperation with the Government in stimulating business, were suggested to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Roper.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, outlining the farm relief program about to be undertaken, urged that agriculture and industry "travel in double harness, as a team with the load equally divided between them."

"We have had enough of ruthless competition," he said, "we have had too much discord between our major producing groups. Agriculture and industry both want higher prices and higher wages."

Stagger Employment.

A cut of 43 per cent in its appropriations for the fiscal year 1934 faces the Commerce Department, Secretary Roper said. In bringing about the economies necessary to make this cut, "there are bound to be unhappy consequences to many individuals, through no fault of their own. Soliciting your sympathetic cooperation in this matter, I suggest that you consider the setting up of some sort of clearing house arrangement, where you might receive from us and maintain records of such persons as would be genuine assets to any business that reaches a position where it can employ additional personnel," he told the chamber.

He also suggested the possibility of staggering Government employment for efficient workers who can be used under normal conditions for necessary functions. This would give them part-pay and protect their eligibility for retirement and at some future date they may be taken back into full-time service. Regarding appropriations, he pointed out that the department is now operating on $45,000,000 and that Congress has appropriated $36,000,000 for next year. He went on: "However, from a recent canvass of the potential governmental revenues for the fiscal year 1934, the Department of Commerce will probably have to reduce approximately $26,000,000 for the next fiscal year."

Transportation Plans.

Secretary Roper also outlined the plans to create a bureau of transportation, which by a reorganization would "concentrate in one department the administrative work relating to all transportation agencies and it is suggested that this unit also administer communications."

The President, he said, is quite pleased with the reorganization plan, which has already been submitted, but wants to discuss some points of it further before issuing the executive orders to put it into effect.

The foreign and domestic commerce reorganization, he estimated, would save $1,000,000 a year by reducing field agents here and abroad. Here there would be just one Commerce Department representative to each Federal Reserve District, working with cooperative offices maintained and paid by local chambers of commerce.

Secretary Roper suggested that the business advisory council consist of 21 members, representing commerce and industry. "Possibly it might be desirable to bring into the picture the departments of economics and schools of business administration of some of our great universities," he went on. This body, which might be called the President's council on business, "would be a channel through which the business community could express itself to the Government, and would at the same time supply the Government with the most experienced business advice as to proper ways of stimulating and reviving the business of the country."

Cat Rescued After 4 Days Up Phone Pole

An itinerant Angora cat, dubbed Tom after his adoption by the family of James W. Thomas, of 4720 Eighth street northwest, last night was taken down from his four-day roost on a telephone pole in the rear of the Thomas residence, feted with milk and given the title of "champion feline telephone pole sitter."

The rescue was effected by neighbors after Tom had been driven up the pole by a pack of dogs. He was there since Tuesday, lacking the nerve to make the descent. Mr. Thomas appealed to both the police and fire departments to effect a rescue, but in vain. Finally an extension ladder was found and put to use.

RELIEF JOBS OPENED TO ALL APPLICANTS

House and Senate Conferees Free Agency of Civil Service Control.

Agreement was reached between House and Senate conferees yesterday to throw open jobs in the new Federal emergency relief agency to all comers, regardless of whether or not they have Civil Service qualifiactions.

Representative Henry B. Steagall (Democrat), Alabama, announced the conference group had come to a complete understanding on the $500,000,000 Lewis-Wagner relief bill, under which the District will benefit on a proportional basis with the States.

In removing Civil Service requirements, the Senate conferees receded from the recent Senate action restoring jobs under the proposed new Federal emergency relief administration to civil service and the classification act. House conferees insisted the Civil Service restrictions be removed.

The House receded on other Senate changes in the bill, increasing the salary of the Federal relief administrator to $10,000, and placing an $8,000 limitation on all other jobs in the agency.

Local relief authorities estimate the District will be able to draw about $135,000 immediately for local relief purposes, on the basis of District relief money spent in the first three months of this year. Additional funds would be available later on the basis of need.

The Senate will not get the conference report until it convenes Monday, and immediate approval is expected. The bill then will go to the White House for approval.

NATIONAL CHAMBER PLEDGES AID IN PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM

themselves are engaged in industry," the resolution said in part.

Arbitrary rules imposed from the outside "would bring widespread detriments, public and private."

With the determined and intelligent cooperation of the Government, "all enterprise would be held to standards of fair competition, properly determined."

Without specific reference to the chamber's resolution, President Roosevelt revealed yesterday, in discussing his Thursday night address, that he does not now contemplate legislation in the special session of Congress looking to ways and means of carrying out the Government's part in such a cooperative industrial program.

It may be possible to determine soon, however, what Congress intends to do with the Black 30-hour-week bill. Then the White House will be in a position to shape its program with more certainty.

The general impression in business circles is that nothing will be attempted along these lines until next winter.

A pointed repudiation of the proposed two-budget system was embodied in the chamber's resolutions touching Federal fiscal policy.

Publicity on Budget.

"A balanced budget is essential to the recovery of business and the orderly fiscal operations of the Federal Government," one declaration began * * * Expenditures for usual capital purposes, such as public works from which the Government normally expects no income or reimbursement should not be placed in a separate budget and financed by bonds issued for that particular purpose but, as has been the established policy, should be met from current income.

"Bonds to finance extraordinary expenditures should not be issued to such an amount that their carrying charges will preclude a balanced budget during the next fiscal year, without additional taxation."

Another resolution demanded a simple and frank annual statement of budget plans to "afford public information of a kind that can be readily understood."

A warning that experimental manipulation of currency, to produce illusory advances in the price index, "will not be conducive to stability," was sounded in the resolution on monetary policy.

Touching international monetary stability, the resolution emphasized: "The gold standard is the only international monetary standard that has commended general acceptance. Its restoration and maintenance are dependent upon the development of confidence, the balancing of public budgets, removal of restrictions upon foreign exchange and greater freedom in the movement of goods."

While acknowledging that present world conditions may justify a reexamination of American commercial policies, the resolution touching foreign trade urged that reciprocal tariff negotiations should be conducted with a view to continue "reasonable protection for American industry."

The proposed new measure to regulate security transactions is of doubtful value in its present form, another resolution hinted.

(Associated Press.)

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States yesterday elected William V. Hodges, of Denver, vice president of the Southwestern Division, and Robert V. Fleming, of Washington, treasurer, reelecting all other incumbent officers.

Hodges succeeds Nathan Adams, of Dallas, and Fleming takes the post of Oscar Wells, Birmingham, who resigned. Among the reelected were Henry I. Harriman, Boston, president, and the following vice presidents:

Matthew S. Sloan, Brooklyn; Junius P. Fishburn, Roanoke, Va.; Felix M. McWhirter, Indianapolis; F. Peavy Heffelfinger, Minneapolis, and Paul Shoup, San Francisco.

New directors elected yesterday in formal balloting by members of the United States Chamber were David F. Edwards, Boston, Mass.; James A. Farrell, New York; Harry Scherr, Huntington, W. Va.; T. Guy Woolford, Atlanta, Ga.; P. W. Litchfield, Akron, Ohio; Lee J. Dougherty, Davenport, Iowa; Edmond C. Van Diest, Colorado Springs, Colo.; C. D. Sturtevant, Omaha, Nebr.; Eric A. Johnston, Spokane, Wash.; A. P. Greensfelder, St. Louis, Mo.; Kerwin H. Fulton, New York; William S. Gebhart, St. Louis, Mo.; Henry Howard, Newport, R. I.; John C. Harding, Chicago, Ill.; William L. Sweet, Rumford, R. I.; Charles E. Bockus, New York and Dante, Va., and John H. Hanna, Washington.

WIDE PROBE STARTS IN WOMAN'S DEATH

District, Montgomery and State Agencies Inquire Into Cancer Case.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 5.—District of Columbia and Montgomery County officials today joined the local State's attorney's office in its probe of events leading up to the death of Mrs. Cora Britton, 39, at the South Baltimore General Hospital this week.

Representatives of the homicide squad attached to the office of Leo A. Rover, district attorney for the District, and Theodore F. Vollten, of the Montgomery County Police Department, are working with Herbert R. O'Conor, State's attorney, and Albert H. Blum, assistant State's attorney, in their investigation.

Mrs. Britton entered the hospital April 2 after she is said to have received treatment elsewhere for a growth on her breast. The treatment, it was said, caused a large cavity. A nurse summoned to attend her, on learning of Mrs. Britton's condition arranged for her removal to the hospital.

Prosecuting authorities today learned that before her marriage Mrs. Britton was Miss Cora Elliott, a member of an old Maryland family which settled on the Eastern Shore about 200 years ago, and after whom the town of Elliott, on the Shore, was named.

Her husband, Dr. Roland L. Britton, of Mays Landing, N. J., the investigators disclosed, not only is a reputable physician but is a health officer of Atlantic County, N. J., which includes Atlantic City. Dr. Britton, it was said, was much opposed to his wife taking the prehospital treatment.

As Mr. O'Conor and Mr. Blum continue their probe here, Mr. Rover will collect all available data in Washington so that both will be available when Dr. Otto Reinhart, coroner of the Southern police district, holds an inquest, probably Monday or Tuesday night.

The date of inquest will depend on reports to be received from Dr. Howard J. Maldeis, who performed an autopsy yesterday, and from Dr. W. B. Penningman, chemist, who is making an analysis for the State's attorney's office, Mr. Blum said.

Mrs. Britton's body has been turned over to her family, and authorities here were advised that the funeral will take place Sunday at Elliott.

IOWA FARMERS GET NO CONGRESS HELP the issue goes to the Senate, where the amendment originally was written into the bill.

"I hate to make any predictions before the House passes on the amendment," Smith said, "but I think it will be thrown out of the bill and that the Senate will agree to its elimination."

Thursday Smith received an ultimatum from the National Farm Holiday Association warning him that unless assurance was received by 5 p. m. (Eastern Standard time), that the Simpson amendment would be retained, the farm strike would be called. Smith did not reply.

He sat in his office yesterday, his desk littered with letters from farmers—potato growers from Maine, wheat farmers from the Dakotas, corn growers in Missouri and Iowa, cotton planters in the Carolinas and Alabama.

"I can't understand these fellows in Iowa," he said, slowly chewing his tobacco, "because its the first time I ever got a telegram like that. I'm a farmer myself, and I think I know what they're up against. It must mean that this country is in the most critical condition it ever has been in. Seems to me we've got to divert the people's attention just a little while longer—to give things time to pick up—or we are going to have some real trouble."

Chairman Jones of the House Agricultural Committee confessed he did not know what would come out of the farm strike.

R. F. C. Directors Pick Jesse Jones

Acting Chairman Elected to Be Successor of Atlee Pomerene.

Jesse Jones, a director and acting chairman of the board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, yesterday was elected chairman. He had been acting in this capacity since Atlee Pomerene left the office on March 4. Pomerene was nominated by President Hoover, but the Senate refused to confirm the appointment.

Jones has been a director of the corporation since February, 1932. He is a prominent Democrat, and was largely responsible for having the 1928 Democratic convention held in his home city, Houston, Tex. He is a publisher and financier.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation said yesterday it had agreed to advance $1,777,000 to Louisiana State University for improvements. Confidence that the State of Tennessee would be granted a $10,000,000 loan also was expressed by Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, after a conference with corporation officials.

Mrs. Pinchot Joins Allentown Strike

Alleged 57-Cents-a-Week Wages Stirs Governor's Wife to Picket.

Allentown, Pa., May 5 (A.P.).—The wife of Gov. Gifford Pinchot today joined picket lines of young textile strikers in protest against low wages and long hours for child labor in Pennsylvania mills.

Mrs. Pinchot marched for two hours along the streets of Northampton and Allentown with boys and girls who had walked out of shirt factories because, they charged, they were paid as little as 57 cents a week.

Attired in red and carrying a placard bearing the word, "Striker," she denounced underpayment of workers as "one of the factors in continuing the depression" and urged elimination of "sweatshop" conditions.

WORKER DISMISSAL BY STATES FOUGHT

kept in the bill because members did not realize its full import. As part of the 30-year retirement section, it was thought to have reference only to retirement, whereas Civil Service officials insist it sets up an apportionment standard for all separations from the service.

It was learned the clause was sponsored inadvertently by a representative from Iowa, one of the States which has more than its quota in the Federal service. Iowa is apportioned only 868 workers. It has 741. So 73 Iowans would be among the first dismissed.

Senate Fight Seen.

House opponents yesterday said they are hopeful if the clause is not stricken in the House, it will run up against a stone wall of opposition in the Senate.

Meanwhile, the Civil Service Commission yesterday was flooded with inquiries, following The Post's disclosure of the effect of the apportionment "sleeper" buried in the independent offices bill.

Callers were informed that unless the clause is dropped from the bill, some 10,682 District residents, and hundreds of excess quota workers from Maryland, Virginia, Iowa and Vermont, must be the first discharged where separations are made from the service.

Note Reaches Paris As Herriot Lands

Officials Withhold Word on Nature of Message From Washington.

Paris (Saturday), May 6 (A.P.).—A note from Washington concerning "financial matters" was reported in government quarters early today to have arrived at the foreign office shortly before the return of former Premier Edouard Herriot to Paris from his conversations with President Roosevelt.

The former premier, who arrived in Le Havre on the Ile de France, reached Paris at 12:45 a. m. Premier Edouard Daladier and the Cabinet members greeted him at the station while a crowd of several hundred cheered. The premier and M. Herriot rode away conversing.

Officials declined to reveal whether the American communication touched on war debts, stabilization of gold or the customs truce suggested by America incident to the world economic conference.

TARIFF TRUCE FAILS OF BRITISH SUPPORT

English Cabinet Unable to Agree to American Plan Without Safeguards.

London, May 5 (A.P.).—America's first big move for giving the World Economic Conference a constructive send-off by means of a tariff truce failed today to gain the support of the British government.

With other countries awaiting Britain's lead, there appeared no hope tonight of making effective an armistice in the economic warfare among the nations.

No outright refusal of cooperation came from Downing street, where Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald held two long sessions with his cabinet, but it was understood that Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent undersecretary of foreign affairs, had informed Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's negotiator, of the inability of the British government to agree to any immediate truce, or even to a truce from the opening of the economic conference, unless Britain's tariff position is protected by safeguards.

A tariff truce with reservations, according to an authoritative American view, would rob the measure of much of its constructive psychological effect.

Official secrecy prevails regarding what passed between Mr. MacDonald and his ministers today, but it was believed that the prime minister's sympathetic presentation of the American proposal was confronted by a stone wall of opposition from the tariff wing of the national government.

Neighborhood House To Crown May Queen

The crowning of the May Queen, whose identity is still a mystery, will feature the final day of the thirty-first annual spring festival of Neighborhood House, 470 N street southwest, at 5 p. m. today. In accordance with an old custom the queen, who is selected for her attitude toward the settlement work, her school and her home, is never notified of her selection until 30 minutes before the procession starts.

An entire block of N street has been roped off for the procession, which will be one of the most colorful events in the festival, according to Mrs. Clara D. Neligh, head resident of Neighborhood House. Following the crowning of the queen there will be May pole dances and other exhibitions.

Washington Dogs Must Be Muzzled in Summer

Health Officer William C. Fowler yesterday was the bearer of ill tidings to Washington dogdom, for on his recommendation the District Commissioners decided to issue the customary proclamation requiring the muzzling of all dogs running at large in the District during June, July, August and September.

In a report to the District heads, Dr. Fowler showed that 712 persons had been bitten by dogs from July 1, 1932, to April 30, 1933, as against 663 for the same period in 1931-32. No cases of rabies, either in dogs or humans, were found in the last 12 months as against two of each in the previous period.

Drug Stores Nonetheless

District Commissioners and Beverage Permits Board Concur in View That 80 Per Cent Food Business Does Not Alter Nature of Retail Business.

Although the modern drug store nowadays bears more of the qualities of a restaurant and a department store than of a pharmacy, it is still a drug store so far as the District Commissioners and the Beverage Permits Board are concerned.

After a personal inspection of the place in question, the Commissioners yesterday denied an appeal of the National Press Pharmacy, 1336 F street, from the beer board's refusal to grant it an on-sale permit. Counsel for the pharmacy declared that 80 per cent of its revenue came from the sale of food; therefore it is primarily a restaurant.

Daniel E. Garges, secretary to the Commissioners, and Auditor Daniel J. Donovan today will designate a room and three or four employes to constitute a staff for the assistance of the permit board in issuing annual licenses.

Taxes received from off-sale and on-sale dealers yesterday totaled $4,888 after 528 reports had been filed, 150 of them paying $1,217.79 in taxes yesterday.

Deputy Assessor Charles A. Russell issued a warning to dealers again that they can not buy beer from out-of-town wholesalers or brewers who have not obtained certificates of approval from the commissioners even though the Washington dealers go after the beverage in their own trucks.

Several such attempts to evade taxation have been discovered, he said, and prosecutions may be started in flagrant cases of law violations.

The Commissioners yesterday declined to authorize the issuance of a permit without cost to the Woman's Army and Navy League despite the latter's plea that it is a nonprofit-making charitable organization.

They declined to rule on the question of whether patrons may bring beer to a restaurant not holding a beer permit to drink it with lunch. The question, which was raised by Mrs. Alice Rhind, who operates a small restaurant at 458 Indiana avenue, was referred to the U. S. attorney's office.

SCHACHT ARRIVES FOR TALKS WITH PRESIDENT ON TRADE

the American experts at the Department of State. These talks were confined to the details of tariff accords and understandings between the two countries. Out of them may come a closer trade agreement with larger allocation of Italian goods in this country and a corresponding increase of American manufactured exports to Italian markets.

The afternoon talks were carried on in the White House. President Roosevelt received the press yesterday afternoon in the presence of the Italian delegates, Jung and Rosso, and Secretary Hull, and announced that his talks had been on the Mussolini-MacDonald four-power treaty and other phases of disarmament.

This is regarded as one of the most effective steps in the direction of disarmament that has as yet been devised. The inclusion of the United States in the four-power agreement already approved by Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Mussolini would be a very strong argument in favor of its adoption as the general disarmament principle for all nations. However, French antagonism to the treaty already has been reported, and it is believed that President Roosevelt will withhold any definite commitment by this country until a more harmonious spirit prevails among all the principal nations in favor of a disarmament plan.

Argentina Talks Lag.

The pall that has been thrown by the Anglo-Argentine trade agreement on the American-Argentine conversations here shows no disposition of lifting. Secretary Hull has been cooperating with Ambassador Le Breton and Espil, but the field of agreement has been narrowed by the anterior pact between the British and the Argentines.

The German delegate will have his first conversation with President Roosevelt today. Dr. Schacht is no stranger to the United States and explained the position of his country in fluent and colloquial English to a score of newspapermen at the Mayflower Hotel, where he is making his home.

"Germany will gladly subscribe to an economic truce for the duration of the economic conference," he declared, "and if any one should come out for free trade, I am sure that Germany would be in favor of that, too."

Wants No Moratorium.

"Germany wants no moratorium. Germany has never asked for a moratorium. Ever since I have arrived here, I hear on every side: Do you want a postponement? I do not believe that there should be a postponement. These debts should be paid."

Afterward, Dr. Schacht admitted that this same principle might with propriety be applied to the debts of other nations as well as to Germany's.

The Hitler regime in Germany is no more a dictatorship than the Roosevelt administration here, he declared. The same intense desire to follow the leader that he found here is inspiring the German people at this moment, he said.

The Hitler spokesman insisted that Germany is anxious to pay her debts. He declared:

"The one debtor in all the world, who wants to pay her debts, is Germany." He mused, "Humph—funny country."

Double German Problem.

According to the perspective of Dr. Schacht, the economic problem resolves itself into two parts: The German necessity to live and the German necessity to pay debts. An increasing favorable trade balance is the only answer to this problem.

One of the outstanding financiers of the world and the man who is looked upon to achieve the economic rehabilitation of Germany at this moment, Dr. Schacht admitted that the present gold coverage for the rentenmark is "ridiculous." It is now at a little more than 9 per cent. The United States is on a 40 per cent gold coverage.

To questions affecting German debts Dr. Schacht professed a complete ignorance except those questions affecting German private debts. This was to emphasize the German determination to pay no more reparations, since the signing of the Lausanne agreements. Payments on account of American mixed claims or the costs of the American Army of Occupation in Germany, are, however, expected to be met out of government funds.

Commission Backs Views on Studios

Bride Remains Steadfast in Opinion Handed in Spier Case.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday remained steadfast in his opinion that the operation of a music studio in a residential zone is not a "home occupation" in the meaning of the District zoning regulations, and the District Commissioners again sustained him.

As a consequence the now celebrated case of LaSalle Spier, who operates a studio at 2235 Bancroft place, versus Commander A. G. Stirling and other neighbors will go to court with the District Government in the role of prosecutor for violation of the zoning act.

The Commissioners earlier in the week resubmitted the question to Mr. Bride following a hearing which developed that the District heads had in 1929 held the studio came within the law.

Aviator Trespass Liability Is Issue

American Law Institute to Thresh Question at Today's Meeting.

Does an airplane flying over the land of a property owner commit a trespass against the property to the extent that the aviator may be held liable in damages? This question, to be decided today by the American Law Institute, is expected to provoke a battle between lawyers for aviation companies and lawyers who are preparing a restatement of the law for the institute.

The fight on behalf of the aviation interests is expected to be led by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General, while the group which will attempt to place liability on the aviator is head by Edward S. Thurston, of the Harvard Law School.

The institute, engaged in the gigantic task of restating the common law, will close its sessions tonight with a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, where it is holding its session. Speakers will be George W. Wickersham, former Attorney General; Secretary of Labor Perkins; Judge Cuthbert W. Pound, of the New York Court of Appeals, and Edmund M. Morgan, of Harvard Law School.

GERMANS PROPOSE NAVAL WORK TRUCE

Amendment Is Submitted to British Arms Plan for Readjustments.

Geneva, May 5 (U.P.).—A naval building truce until 1936 on all types of war craft was suddenly proposed by Germany today to the general commission of the world arms conference.

The German proposal, submitted as an amendment to the British plan for arms readjustment, made the single exception of replacements. All new construction in addition to any vessels already laid down or planned as addition to the tonnage of any power would be banned.

The German delegation also submitted amendments which would allow Germany to construct submarines and airplanes in the event complete abolition of submarines and naval military aircraft is not achieved by the arms limitation convention.

The German proposals, which caused a minor sensation in the session, stated that if absolute abolition of the submarine as an instrument of war is not included in the arms document, "Germany reserves the right to come back to the question, probably at the second reading of the convention."

"Germany is prepared to maintain until the 1935 naval conference the number of ships alloted to her at present," their proposal added.

The amendment for this naval holiday on all but replacements of obsolete warships met with little immediate enthusiasm, it being felt this would prove but another obstacle to the early drafting of an arms convention based on the British plan, to be submitted as the basis of consideration at the world arms conference.

Future work of the preliminary conference here will be discussed by the steering committee on Monday. The commission adjourned after the German amendments had been submitted.

Police Hunt Man On Assault Count

Girl Not Seriously Hurt Battling Assailant in Northeast Area.

Eleventh Precinct and Prince Georges County police were searching early today for a young colored man who late last night attempted to assault Miss Bessie J. Cissell, 21, 34 Chapel street, Seat Pleasant, Md., as she was walking from the street car line at Sixty-first and Dix street northeast to her home.

Jumping from the shadows in a secluded place, the man who was described as being about 21 years old, grabbed the girl and attempted to drag her over an embankment. She screamed and fought, forcing the man to flee.

Police said she was not seriously hurt, although her clothing was torn.

Burroughs Citizens Unit Asks Ouster of Gotwals

The Burroughs Citizens Association in a resolution has asked the removal of Engineer Commissioner Gotwals because he "catered to Congress" instead of working in the interests of District citizens.

The demand based on Gotwals' conduct of the now famed "cupola" which was to top the new William Howard Taft Junior High School, his decision to replace the Calvert Street Bridge with a steel span instead of a stone structure, and his policy of continuing the use of hot air heating plants in some public school buildings.

9,000 VETERANS GET BONUS MARCH FAVOR

White House after emerging from their parley with Col. Howe. Although the statement was made entirely on the motivation of the former service men, it was printed on a White House mimeograph machine and handed around to reporters with the knowledge of the Chief Executive's secretariat.

Under the agreement with Col. Howe, said the veterans, the Government will provide a Federal site for encampment by the trekking veterans and will provide rations and other vital wherewithals for those unable to provide such.

Several Locations Available.

Last night it was said at the committee headquarters that Camp Meigs was the site most preferred for the gathering.

The agreement with the White House adviser was said to have called for a site of government land, "outside of the limits of the District of Columbia and convenient to the meeting place at Washington."

Veteran officials pointed out that Camp Meigs is Federal property and is therefore out of the actual jurisdiction of District municipal authorities. However, if this were not found suitable, the liaison group said there are several other locations outside the District line which would be favorable and which are under Government jurisdiction.

Under the agreement, the meeting must end May 18, with the committee guaranteeing the orderly character of the gatherings and the conduct of the delegates.

Veterans' Own Statement.

At the White House, Stephen Early, press secretary, pointed out that the statement was that of the men themselves, but indicated that the agreement was authentic and would be carried out if the committee stayed within limits prescribed by Col. Howe.

"While here," declared the veterans' statement, "the authorities will provide quarters for the properly accredited delegates who are unable to make provision for their own accommodations, with facilities for cooking, &c."

City to Collect No Tax On House Cafe's Beer

The District Commissioners will not collect any beer taxes from the House restaurant at the Capitol, but they will assess all other licenses on Federal property.

Upon advice of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride they decided yesterday that the House restaurant is not liable to $1 a barrel tax, but that the Army War College mess must pay the municipal tariff. Mr. Bride based his opinion as to the House restaurant on a District Supreme Court ruling some years ago that Capitol restaurants did not have to procure licenses to sell intoxicating liquors.

The House restaurant did not apply for a temporary permit to sell beer.

OUTDOOR LIFE HELD HELP FOR JOBLESS

Visitors at Camp Fair Told Need of Outlet for Surplus Energy.

Development of outdoor life as a panacea for unemployment and a safeguard for the Nation's health was advocated last night at the camping exposition at Barker Hall, Y. W. C. A.

Addressing the large number of visitors, Dr. Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the National Education Association Journal, stressed the need of creating new occupations for large numbers of people.

"What better field could be found for our surplus time and energy than the development of a reasonable amount of wholesome outdoor life for the entire population, particularly for the children," Dr. Morgan said.

"Camp life today is in its beginnings and some day this form of opportunity will be a regular part of children's education and a means of conserving the vitality of the race."

Sponsored by the recreation committe of the Council of Social Agencies, the display drew a large number of interested persons to exhibitions of the most modern camping equipment, made possible by the cooperation of local merchants.

Three plays, emphasizing the importance of camping, were given by Boy and Girl Scouts and members of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. under the direction of Mrs. Alice Sigworth Morse.

Today a "Make-Believe Camp" will be staged in Barker Hall, followed by a weiner roast on the roof of the Y. W. C. A. Building.

Liner to Operate Under New Heads

City of Washington Will Go to Mt. Vernon and Park.

The Wilson Line steamer City of Washington anchored at her pier here yesterday arriving from Wilmington, Del., where she was refurbished while docked for the winter. The boat will make trips to Mount Vernon and Marshall Hall Park, the latter will be operated under new management this year.

Trips to Chapel Point will be discontinued, it was announced. Capt. John Emering will be in command of the vessel.

The management of the line operating the steamer stated that they have never served alcoholic beverages on any of their boats, and unless public sentiment dictates the use of beer on the boat, their policy of the past will be adhered to.

Navy Will Continue Ban on Marriages

Annapolis Graduates May Not Wed in 2 Years Probation Period.

(Associated Press.)

Love—which has the reputation of finding a way—was dealt a blow yesterday by Secretary Swanson.

He ruled that members of the Naval Academy graduating class may not marry during the two-year probationary period after their studies are finished in June.

"I've received lots of letters from young men in love, and they even had their congressmen and senators come down to see if the marriage ban could be revoked," Swanson said. "I admire a man who falls in love, but I admire still more those who wait before marrying. Since this is the case the marriage ban on Annapolis graduates will continue in force."

The ban was put on about one year ago by Charles Francis Adams while Secretary of the Navy, but exceptions were permitted where midshipmen had already arranged for ceremonies. This year the ban will be without exceptions.

McFadden Says Mellon Evaded Income Taxes

(United Press.)

Former Secretary of Treasury Andrew W. Mellon was charged yesterday by Representative Louis T. McFadden, Pennsylvania, with deducting $6,700,000 in his 1931 income tax return for alleged losses in stocks which he repurchased a month later.

The circumstances of this transaction, McFadden charged in a speech in the House, "are similar to the admission of Mr. Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City Bank, before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, which admission caused his indictment."

MEDICAL LIQUOR BAR TO BE RELAXED

Treasury Department About to Loosen Up on Stringencies.

A general relaxation of restrictions on the distribution of medicinal liquor is about to be made by the Treasury Department by which physicians will be permitted to issue prescriptions for liquor in amounts which they, in "good faith," believe to be necessary for the needs of their patients.

The new regulations will become effective May 15. In the meantime the old regulations will remain in force. The new order will sweep into the discard the restrictions limiting prescriptions for liquor to one pint in 10 days to a patient; and limiting the physician to 100 prescriptions in 90 days.

Under the new regulations a physician will be permitted to issue liquor in a sufficient quantity to supply the needs of the patient for 30 days. The physician may, if the necessity arises, prescribe for liquor to last for a greater period.

The handling of liquor by druggists will also be greatly relaxed. Under present regulations the druggist must give bond for obtaining a quantity of liquor in excess of 60 gallons a year. Under the new regulations they will have to give bond when they have on hand liquor in excess of 15 gallons and wine in excess of 15 gallons.

The new regulations have been drafted and require only the signature of Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, Attorney General Cummings, Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol Doran, A. V. Dalrymple, director of prohibition, and David Burnet, commissioner of internal revenue.

KIWANIS CHILDREN'S CAMP IS ARRANGED

$2,000 Raised by Club of Alexandria to Assist Needy Youngsters.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 322.

Irving Diener, president of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club, has announced definite plans for the summer camp to be established by the club for underprivileged children and stated the project has been practically underwritten by local and nearby business men. The project will represent an investment of approximately $2,000, which includes the site, a building sufficient to accommodate 20 persons, and complete furnishings. Ground will be broken within the next ten days.

Kent White, chairman of the building committee, states he has commitments involving $500 in building material, fixtures and labor, and while this does not represent more than about a third of the finished cost of the plant, his committee expects to receive further donations of material and labor.

Elliott F. Hoffman, chairman of finance committee, announces pledges of members and interested townsmen to the extent of $1,100, with additional prospects.

D. C. Book and C. B. Swan, co-chairmen for the furnishings, have secured pledges for all essential house furnishings, such as cots, shades and bedding.

The camp will be located near Franconia, on the old colonial site in Mount Hebron Park, and has been thoroughly inspected and approved by health authorities. It is proposed to extend the use of the camp to approximately 15 children at a time for a period of a week or ten days, throughout the summer. Each individual case will be passed on by the club and upon acceptance will be given a thorough physical examination before leaving for camp, and when ready to return to their home.

Darrow May Fight Blue Laws Charge

Counsel of Men Arrested in Montgomery Get Offer of His Service.

Insistence on enforcement of the ancient blue laws of Montgomery County, Md., until even the old Puritans would look gay in contrast, was forecast last night by John J. McGinnis, attorney for three Washington men arrested in Montgomery County on charges of Sabbath breaking.

Attorney McGinnis, who yesterday announced that he would have Clarence Darrow, veteran champion of civil liberties, as his associate in battling the blue laws when his clients come before Judge Donald A. DeLashmutt in Montgomery County Police Court at Rockville, Md., was notified yesterday by Darrow that he will be glad to participate if the case can be postponed to the latter part of the month. McGinnis plans to ask for a continuance.

The three men were arrested April 30 for moving the furniture of a Washington attorney, Samuel H. Horne, from his Washington home, where the lease had expired, to Somerset. They were H. C. Kearns, 1447 Fairmont street northwest; G. P. Minor and M. D. Shear, both of 800 Delafield place northwest. They were arrested on a warrant sworn out by Leroy Weber, of Somerset.

Seat Pleasant Bank Organization Favored

Approval for the organization of the proposed Seat Pleasant Bank, Seat Pleasant, Md., was received from Maryland State Bank Commissioner John J. Ghinger, it was announced yesterday. The bank will be formed from the Southern Maryland Trust Co., now operating on a restricted basis.

A meeting of the stockholders to consider the entire plan of reorganization has been called for Tuesday, May 16. Credit for the establishment of the new institution, it was pointed out by officials of the trust company, is mainly due to the efforts of Lee J. Naughton, secretary of the original bank. The Seat Pleasant Bank will operate on a 100 per cent basis, it was stated.

Bus Passenger Loses Lawsuit for Damages

A verdict was returned for the defendant yesterday in the suit of Mrs. Elizabeth W. Lynch against R. L. May, trading as the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Bus Co., for $20,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been suffered last July 9, while a passenger on a bus.

The case was heard before Judge William P. Wolls in the corporation court of Alexandria.

A plea that he hadn't been working for five months and that when he finally got a job he was paid off in whisky to be bartered for money failed to save Francis Fletcher, Bowie, Md., from an illegal possession sentence when tried in the Marlboro police court yesterday. Judge J. Chew Sheriff committed him to jail for 30 days.

Steven Simms, colored, of Oxon Hill, Md., was also sent to jail for 30 days on an illegal possession charge. His home was raided by Constable Raymond Hendly. George J. Dyson, colored, of Washington, was given his choice of $50 fine or 30 days in the Marlboro Jail. He was arrested by County Policeman G. W. Gray on a charge of transportation and possession of whisky.

Thomas J. Scott, colored, of Washington, also received the sentence given Dyson, for transportation and possession of 8 gallons of whisky. Two others, Francis W. Norris and Carlyle Walters, of La Plata, Md., were given the same sentence for possession and transportation.

30—30 years of service.
*Married with husband or wife in the service of the United States or District of Columbia.
†From a State in excess under the apportionment.
Pref.—Military preference.

The figures were used in the case of 32 Civil Service Commission employes of medium grade. It will be noted that in the first column most of the excess apportionment workers are above the halfway mark and that the 30-year men and women are mostly below the halfway level.

In the second, using efficiency and service as a basis the 30-year people sought the highest level and would not be touched as a class by the separation plan. Then it is that the apportionment clause works in and affects those toward the bottom of the column, as well as the married men and women.

In the last row of figures the 30-year class still clings to the top and apportionment affects the last 11.

In column 1 we see No. 10, for instance, becomes the last on the list in column 2 and remains so in the third column. No. 1 in column 1 gets a rank a little above midway in column 2 and a bit higher in the last row. No. 23 in column 1 works higher each time after leaving the first row.

Board of Fairfax Keeps Book Plan

Committee Is Selected to Advertise and Sell Old Navy School.

The school board of Fairfax County, Va., at its regular monthly meeting yesterday decided to continue handling school books for distribution to children in the public schools, but through agents. The action was taken after Superintendent W. T. Woodson recommended that the books be placed in the hands of agents in the various territories. The agents would receive 15 per cent above the cost now retained by the board.

The board voted to secure title by condemnation to the proposed addition to the grounds at the new Groveton School. It was also voted to continue operation of a primary room at Snowden school, which was to have been abandoned when the new Groveton School was opened. Trustee Joseph Murphy, of Dranesville District, and Superintendent Woodson were appointed a committee to advertise and sell the Navy School, which has been discontinued, at public auction.

The clerk was instructed to return the deposit check made on the purchase of the old Franconia School by the late Phoebe Gillingham, to her estate and readvertise the property for resale.

Driver Is Exonerated In Three-Car Accident

Herman Lyles, colored, was exonerated yesterday by a Prince Georges County Circuit Court jury from a charge of manslaughter growing out of an automobile accident at T. B., Md., last January 14.

The defense, upheld by State Senator Lansdale G. Sasser, contended that the three-car accident, in which Raymond Vorhees, of Washington, was killed, was too indefinitely described to fix direct blame on anyone. The jury was out only 15 minutes.

"THE WORKING MAN." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Rowland Brown, adapted by Sidney Buchman and Charles Kenyon and Maude Howell, starring George Arliss, with Bette Davis, Hardie Albright, Gordon Westcott, Theodore Newton, J. Farrell MacDonald and Ruthelma Stevens. Directed by John G. Adolfi. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

George Arliss has not in months had so splendid a vehicle as this.

Not the George Arliss of "Disraeli," "Old English," "Alexander Hamilton," or even "The King's Vacation," but a personality more akin to "The Millionaire," although in this role of the industrial leader he is a much warmer, more emotionally alive, more vibrant, more vital and more genuinely human character than he was in the earlier story of capitalism.

It is, in short, virtually a new Arliss that we have here, and in what is, for him, a new type of picture. The whole thing adds up to an hour or so of superlative entertainment—engrossing, inspiring, utterly clean and completely wholesome.

It is a simple story, yet one with many unexpected twists and sudden developments that unfold themselves with constantly accelerated tempo—perhaps with slight overemphasis on the power of a single good example to bring about quick and permanent reformation among young people addicted to dissipation and the speed of modern living—and, withal, a tale that moves directly and with closely knit compactness to its final mildly satirical moment when we find a great shoe magnate wiggling his toes in the sheer ecstasy of going fishing in his bare feet!

It all comes about when one Reeves deserts his mammoth shoe factory for an outing in Maine to evade the pompous egotism of a nephew he has made general manager of the plant. While on the New England coast he encounters the young wastrels who have inherited the business of his oldest friend—recently deceased—and bitterest rival. He sees their fortune dwindling under the crafty mismanagement of a miscreant executive; foresees the doom of a once prosperous enterprise, and, to circumvent so unnecessary a disaster, contrives to put himself at the head of the concern he has battled all these years. The upshot is that his own business is threatened, the cocky nephew is put in his place and a giant merger comes into being as a happy eventuation of a thread of romance that enters the warp and woof of the play about half way through the completion of its pattern.

Although Arliss once more is the infallible genius of his own and other people's destiny, he is more impressively a figure who profoundly comes to life. There is more vigor in his portrayal of "The Working Man"—which strikes this observer as none too good a title—than in anything he has done for the screen.

The contagion of the star's splendid performance seems to have spread to the members of his supporting cast, for Bette Davis is better than she has been in many releases, as the daughter of the rival shoeman; Gordon Westcott is especially fine as the renegade manager, and Hardie Albright has what amounts to his most fruitful opportunity before the cameras and microphones as the young nephew with the efficiency complex. Theodore Newton is forthright and likable as the son whom Reeves brings to his senses, and J. Farrell MacDonald, as the old fishing companion, does justice to a bit.

On the stage Joan Blondell, assisted by Bert Walton, a veteran comic of robust method, scores a three-star hit with some well-turned badinage with her partner, a song in which she laments a few Hollywood injustices, "I Want to Be a Lady," and a dance in which she manages a pair of borrowed brogans in a way that wins her an uproarious closing. Miss Blondell, unlike many screen stars who have appeared here in person, is an artiste not unacquainted with the requirements of the stage who really "puts on an act"—in addition to which she is a young woman of gracious personality, striking beauty and smart attire. A solid hit with yesterday's enthusiastic customers.

Those whom Miss Doyle—gayly turned out as usual—introduces before Miss Blondell are Harry Breuer, a deft and tuneful xylophonist; the De Toregos, agile dancers, with the Demarest Sisters and a talented soprano assisting, and Mr. Walton in an act of his own, in which he occupies the conductor's stand a good deal of the time and introduces a tenor of no mean ability. All are excellent.

Mr. McNamee's newsreel chatter and Freddie Clark's orchestral interludes complete a ne plus ultra bill.

RIALTO

"OUT ALL NIGHT." Universal picturization of a story by Tim Whelan, costarring Zasu Pitts and George "Slim" Summerville, with Laura Hope Crews, Shirley Gray and Rollo Lloyd. Directed by Sam Taylor. Reviewed (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

In his own way, "Slim" Summerville is one of the funniest men on the screen and in her own way (not unlike Mr. Summerville's), Zasu Pitts is no slouch as a farceuse—but putting them together,—well, there is no real way to describe what they can do; it simply must be seen. Accordingly, these stellar funmakers are going into their second week, in "Out All Night," one of the season's lustiest comedies.

"Slim" is a much-babied son who falls in love with a department store nursery attendant. That alone should be sufficient raison d'etre for the Pitts-Summerville combine, but for good measure, Laura Hope Crews is cast as the ever-watchful mother.

Mixing well, and adding a honeymoon to Niagara Falls (Niffles, if you prefer) which dearest mater supervises, you get everything you are looking for—and then some.

Supplementing the feature is "The Fighting President," Universal Pictures' contribution to the President's press-agentry. The picture was made by Allyn Butterfield and related by Edwin C. Hill.

Other attractions include an amusing Oswald Rabbit Cartoon, "Going to Blazes," and a release of the Universal News.

LOEW'S FOX

"THE BARBARIAN." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of Edgar Selwyn's play, "The Arab," adapted to the screen by Anita Loos and Elmer Harris, starring Ramon Novarro, with Myrna Loy, Louise Closser Hale, Reginald Denny, C. Aubrey Smith, Edward Arnold and Blanche Friderici. Directed by Sam Wood. Reviewed Friday morning.

George Jessel, in emulation of his recent partner in a tour of the Southwest, the eminent Mr. Eddie Cantor, currently occupies the same stage which Mr. Cantor trod only a few short weeks ago, with a revue fashioned along the same general lines as Mr. Cantor's. Mr. Cantor, in lieu of any stellar name as distinguished as his own, you will remember, carried a band with his act. Mr. Jessel, instead of carrying a band, boasts the decorative presence in his spirited offering of "orma Talmadge, erstwhile queen of the silent screen, whose stage appearance rekindles warm memories of the beauty and charm for which the cameras were so ravenous.

Miss Talmadge, strikingly gowned in a series of creations of real pictorial splendor—her first entrance being in white satin and diamonds—is no less ravishingly beautiful than in the days of her heyday in the cinema. She participates in a majority, if not all, of the skits and blackouts with which Mr. Jessel punctuates his frolic, greatly to their advantage. Having enjoyed the goings-on yesterday from the fifth row of the orchestra, I would not be too sure that Miss Talmadge is easily audible from very much farther back in the house. She is, however, enchantingly lovely from any of the 3,500 seats.

Mr. Jessel himself does yeoman's service in song, jest, story and sketches. Two of his most effective bits are the telephone incident—in which he can not get a number right across the street, when others are calling Paris and Capetown with conspicuous success— and the French playlet, during which he translates the action both to the audience, in English, and to his "mother," in a stage box, in Yiddish. Both of these have been seen numerous times before by Washington audiences, but always score as comedy knockouts.

The stars, however, are not the sum total of the revuelet which they adorn. They present also the Three California Red Heads, a trio of feminine tap dancers who hoofed their way to repeated encores; another trio of dancers, two boys and a girl, whose names Mr. Jessel himself did not seem to know, but whose adagio number rates high in its field, and Kay Hamilton, the singer of "hot" numbers, acquired from the Olsen and Johnson "Atrocities of 1933," of fresh and flippant memory.

Jessel was a tower of strength to his miniature production yesterday in such emergencies as arose during a remarkably smooth first performance, considering the brief period of rehearsal, ad libbing his way over the shaky spots and cleverly converting imminent confusion, if not disaster into effective comedy by the deftness of his wit and his coolness under fire. We remarked yesterday morning that they couldn't miss. They didn't.

On the screen, Ramon Novarro offers a restrained and amusing interpretation of the dusky hero of Edgar Selwyn's familiar story of the young dragoman who won the heart of a beautiful young tourist in Egypt ostensibly to marry her English lover. The action is alive with such incidents as found their most romantic expression in "The Sheik" and affords both Mr. Novarro and Myrna Loy opportunity to be immensely diverting in a romance of many extravagances but much humor.

"The Barbarian" is handsomely produced and photographed, with many desert scenes of imposing vastness and beauty. Miss Loy's rose-petal bath in Achmed Pasha's palace in the oasis is a close second to Miss Colbert's ablutionary moments in the tank of asses' milk in Mr. De Mille's "Sign of the Cross."

In addition to Novarro and Miss Loy, Louise Closser Hale, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Denny, as the bridegroom left waiting at the altar, and Edward Arnold, as Achmed, contribute somewhat flamboyantly to the color and adventurous spirit that characterize this excellent rendition of an old and time-worn story.

The Fox Movietone News completes the screen portion of the entertainment and in lieu of the customary overture the girls' glee club from the Jefferson Junior High School appeared in the third annual music week competition at the first performance of the day.

Even standing-room, I dare say—what with Talmadge-Jessel, Novarro-Loy and the music observance—will be at a premium throughout the current week. N. B. B.

METROPOLITAN

"PICTURE SNATCHER." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by Danny Ahearn, starring James Cagney, with Ralph Bellamy, Patricia Ellis, Alice White, Kaly Horelick and Robert Emmet O'Connor. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

In most of the pictures in which tabloid journalism has been dragged over the coals, news photographers have been brought in to enhance the argument, but in "Picture Snatcher" the roles have become reversed.

With James Cagney in the title role, a tabloid newspaper's star photographer, "Picture Snatcher," is more a typical Cagney vehicle than it is a journalistic yarn, one in which the star can be his blunt "Hell's Kitchen" self without a great deal of opposition from the story. However, it is a good newspaper story, revolving around a former convict's attempt to make good as a news cameraman and culminating in the "shooting" of an execution of a woman at Sing Sing.

Of course, there is a love motif worked in, and, quite naturally, its heroine is the daughter of the police captain, Cagney double-crosses in getting the picture. But in the capturing of "public enemy No. 1," Cagney not only reinstates himself with father, but with daughter as well, and, with his city editor, gets a new job on a real paper—in site and in journalistic ethics.

Inasmuch as this is a typically Cagney opus, typically Cagney acted, little need be said on that score. Nor can much be said of the alluring manner in which Alice White does the sob sister, nor of the sweet, unobtrusive way Patricia Ellis plays policeman's daughter. You know them all.

For the really outstanding performances, Ralph Bellamy, as the city editor; Ralf Harolde, as Jerry the Mug, P. H. No. 1, and Robert Emmet O'Connor, as the police lieutenant, later captain, should be mentioned. Since his excellent work in "Destination Unknown" and "Below the Sea," Mr. Bellamy seems to be increasing in histrionic stature.

Rounding out the program, aside from a release of Paramount News, is "Northern Exposure," a musicomedy in Technicolor with John Sheehan, Sheila Lercy and Snub Pollard.

RKO-KEITH'S

"DIPLOMANIACS." Columbia Pictures' filmization of a story by Joseph Mankiewicz with music by Harry Akst and lyrics by Edward Eliscu, starring Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, with Marjorie White, Phyllis Barry, Louis Calhern, Hugh Herbert and Neely Edwards. Directed by William Seiter, with dances directed by Larry Ceballos. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Mabel Herriman.

A couple of good showmen go to the Geneva Peace Conference, and if you like the particular brand of lunacy dispensed by Wheeler and Woolsey you will accept this hilarious burlesque in the manner and in the crazy spirit in which it is presented.

The ingratiating Bert Wheeler and his more aggressive partner in the noble art of wise-cracking, Robert Woolsey, bring us the "Diplomaniacs," which is all that the title implies. It is vaguely reminiscent of all the other Wheeler and Woolsey dithyrambic offerings, with scenery and scantily clad feminine chorus, in the early shots, very obviously borrowed from the sets of "So This Is Africa."

The two comedians perform with their usual breezy abandon and the audience doesn't seem to worry over the fact that there is neither plot nor coherence in the play itself. There are a few clever dance routines directed by Larry Ceballos. We could have watched several more and listened to a bit more barber-shop harmonizing by the boys. There is a brief and clever imitation of Ed Wynn by Woolsey and a satiric and amusing sketch in the peace conference.

The feminine interest rather lags and we feel that the comedy team needs the bolstering influence of Dorothy Lee, Johnyna Ralston and a tuneful extravaganza on the order of "Rio Rita" really to show off to best advantage. However, "Diplomaniacs" is enjoyable entertainment if you like your humor broad and your comedy slapstick—at least it gives us something to think about besides salary cuts and enforced furloughs, and the Keith patrons greeted it with a lusty and welcoming snigger. Marjorie White, Louis Calhern and Phyllis Barry help the thing along.

Added attractions are also in the lighter vein. A "Scrappy" animated cartoon brings us some clever caricatures of screen celebrities, while a new Screen Snapshots presents movie royalty in person. Jimmy Gleason appears in a Universal short, "Mr. Mugg" and Tom Howard is presented in a new comedy called "A Drug on the Market."

The Pathe News is brightened by a brief view of Greta Garbo returning from her native heath—so you'll get your money's worth by both volume and weight!

PALACE

"TODAY WE LIVE." M-G-M's picturization of William Faulkner's novel, adapted by Edith Fitzgerald and Dwight Taylor, starring Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper, with Franchot Tone, Robert Young, Louise Closser Hale and Roscoe Karns. Directed by Howard Hawks. Reviewed Friday evening by Dorothea Lewis.

Mr. William Faulkner's inarticulate but fiercely sentimental young people live through a strange series of todays that leave us slightly confused, but interested.

Particularly curious items are its staccatto spirit yet contradictorily slow length; economy of dialogue with ommission of all pronouns, yet superfluity of "what ho" remarks; the fish-fin dress and other 1936 clothes of Joan for all the story's 1916 setting; a game called Beaver about which some of us are as much in the dark as we are about the story George M. Cohan told in the park; army regulations which permit hazing nonfliers in the thick of aerial battles.

Story—as Mr. Faulkner might paint it—study quartet serious, sensitive souls tangled akein love. Ronnie, sister Ann, friend Claude, American Richard. Claude loves Ann. Ann loves Richard. Richard reported dead. Ann lets Claude love Ann. Richard returns, hates, understands, loves. Richard tests Claude's airplane. Claude tests Richard's torpedo boat. Like. Complications continue.

As unusual in the telling as the manner used to tell it, the picture is a good deal better than this jerky synopsis would indicate and contains considerable food for thought, though we can't help feeling that the four principals are almost painfully sporting and could feel nearer kin if just one had proved something less than a hero with a multitude of beau gestes up his sleeve.

One thing is crystal clear—two intrepid, able young men, Franchot Tone and Robert Young, as Ronnie and Claude, respectively, take Joan Crawford and Gary Cooper's picture politely but firmly and distribute the spoils equally. Not that Joan and Gary aren't good, but Franchot and Robert are better. The Tone lad, much more himself than in "Gabriel Over the White House," draws

Glass Plans Speed For Bank Measure

Way for Reform Smoothed at Conference Held With Woodin.

(Associated Press.)

With a renewed pledge of support from President Roosevelt, Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, prepared last night to seek early Senate action on his long-studied and far-reaching bill to revise the national banking laws. The Virginian smoothed the way for his bank reform measure yesterday at a conference with Secretary Woodin, in which he agreed to two modifications sought by the Treasury head.

One of these would defer for a year operation of the gigantic plan for insuring deposits in Federal Reserve member banks. The other would permit the Treasury Secretary to continue as an ex-officio member of the Federal Reserve Board.

After his conference with Woodin, Glass predicted his banking subcommittee would approve the bill Monday or Tuesday and that it would be speeded to the Senate floor by the full committee.

FIVE STATES BACK ICKES AS OIL CZAR

Independent Group Assails Proposed Legislation Creating Dictator.

(Associated Press.)

Proposed legislation granting virtual dictatorial powers in the petroleum industry to the Secretary of the Interior was approved yesterday by representatives of oil interests from five States. The group included committees appointed by the governors of Pennsylvania, Kansas and Oklahoma.

Meanwhile the Independent Petroleum Association, opposed to monopoly, issued a statement protesting emphatically against the creation of what was termed an "oil czar."

A draft of several amendments and additions to an emergency bill designed to aid the oil industry in stabilizing itself which the oil men completed this afternoon will be gone over by the first group with Secretary Ickes today. If he approves the bill, the plan is to get the completed measure before Congress early next week.

The bill, though it goes several steps further, follows closely President Roosevelt's compromise offered divergent groups in the oil industry after the Chief Executive's consideration of recommendations made by a majority group which attended the governor's conference late in March.

Christian Science Churches

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Hosea 14:1: "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." (Genesis, 1:26-27.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is not matter; he is not made up of brain, blood, bones, and other material elements. The Scriptures inform us that man is made in the image and likeness of God. Matter is not that likeness. The likeness of Spirit can not be so unlike Spirit. Man is spiritual and perfect; and because he is spiritual and perfect, he must be so understood in Christian Science." (Page 475.)

GOVERNMENT AND INDUSTRY.

President Roosevelt's speech to the representatives of American industry has been well received. His determination to raise commodity prices is producing results. Throughout all industry there is fresh courage, tempered only by apprehension that inflation may react unfavorably upon the stability of the currency and the Government's credit. The administration seems to have no fears on that score, and at any rate the public carries on its dollar transactions without reference to threatened fluctuations.

Mr. Roosevelt makes three requests for co-operation on the part of industry. They are: That wages be maintained, and increased if possible, as prices rise; that industry demonstrate its willingness to set its own house in order and co-operate with the Government to that end; and that each particular branch of industry bear in mind that all industry must thrive if any part of it is to have lasting prosperity.

As industry recovers it may be expected that wages will gradually rise, but labor will be compelled to nudge industry if prompt increases are to be made. Prices move more rapidly than wage changes, and it is usually very difficult to revise wages upward. Nevertheless, the country's welfare demands that the workers shall share in any recovery that comes. They are not only the producers, but the consumers. Farm relief legislation will be only partly successful if the great mass of workers are unable to consume generously. The grim experiences of the last four years warn all industries to play fairly with the workers, in order to maintain a market for industrial products. The farmer and the industrial worker are linked together in an economic chain. The manufacturer, who must sell to the farmer, can not afford to deprive the farmer of the consumptive power of industrial workers.

The second request by the President is of far-reaching importance, and legislation probably will take the form outlined by him. Industry will be afforded wide latitude for reorganization on a voluntary plan, made possible by relaxation of the law which now denies to it the privilege of making agreements for abolition of destructive and immoral competition. With safeguards against combinations intended to monopolize or restrain fair trade, it is possible to allow to each great branch of industry the privilege of making general agreements looking to the removal of forms of competition that injure everybody while benefiting nobody except unfair or dishonest traders.

The reconstruction of the basis upon which industry is to operate is a complicated task. President Roosevelt promises the aid of the Government in executing this task. Industry signifies that it welcomes his assurance and that it will undertake the plan he outlines. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States states the case in its resolution in which it declares that Federal legislation affording opportunity for self-regulation under Federal supervision would assure fair competition, increase employment, and enhance earnings. If the resolution had added a word in behalf of better wages as fast as conditions permit, it would be evident that industry and the Government are of one accord.

PRESERVE FEDERAL CREDIT.

A timely word of caution as to the financial situation of the Government is contained in a resolution passed by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. "Bonds to finance extraordinary expenditures," the chamber says, "should not be issued to such an amount that their carrying charges will preclude a balanced budget during the next fiscal year, without additional taxation." A balanced budget, including all the normal expenditures of the Government, is considered as essential to recovery.

Undoubtedly this resolution is aimed at the public works program which is under discussion on Capitol Hill. In spite of the drastic economies brought about by the administration in the last two months the budget for 1934 is not yet in balance by about $120,000,000. This does not take into account sums that may be needed to finance the new venture in agricultural relief nor the public works program. If extensive building projects are undertaken, the actual budget may be as badly unbalanced as it has been for the last two years.

"Expenditures for usual capital purposes," says the Chamber of Commerce resolution, "such as public works from which the Government normally expects no income or reimbursement, should not be placed in a separate budget and financed by bonds issued for that particular purpose, but, as has been the established policy, should be met from current income." If the Government has any surplus income, no one could object to the expenditure of that amount on a building program to provide employment and stimulate business. But there is reason for the utmost caution in trying to sell a vast amount of bonds for the construction of projects that add to the Government's liability.

A large portion of the recent short term issue by the Treasury was absorbed by banks. Fear of an inflated currency and repudiation of the gold clause in Government bonds has visibly restricted the range of Government credit. A bond issue for $1,000,000,000 or $2,000,000,000 might not be absorbed without drawing upon bank credit to a dangerous extent. The $5,000,000,000 issue proposed by fanatics in Congress would almost certainly choke the investing public and paralyze the credit system. Instead of stimulating industrial activity, such a rash adventure would probably deprive industry of credit and result in further drastic deflation.

The credit of the Government is always the last refuge of confidence. It must be preserved at all hazards. Indications are that the Government's credit has already been strained. The utmost precautions are necessary to preserve that credit from a strain that it could not bear. In the light of recent events President Roosevelt may find it advisable to reduce his estimates for capital outlays so that there will be no danger of an adverse effect upon Government bonds or withdrawal of capital from private enterprise.

BANKING SYSTEMS.

Many inquirers have asked why it is that, while 10,000 banks have failed in the United States, representing a third of the total number throughout the country, there have been no bank failures in Canada. Primarily the difference is that, in this country, besides national banks, there are forty-eight different sets of State banking laws under which banks can be organized, in many instances with nominal capitalization. There are only ten banks in Canada, but they serve all parts of the Dominion through branches.

The question of branch banking is now an important issue before Congress. There is general recognition of the necessity of radical reforms in the banking system, but opinion is widely divided on the question of branch banking. Some States permit branches, others do not. The latest suggestion in connection with the Glass bill is that the branches of any institution be limited to the county in which the bank is located, and then, of course, only in States permitting this system.

Branch banking in itself does not assure soundness, although the argument is often heard that a diversity of interests and communities makes for security. The minimum capitalization of a Canadian bank at the time of organization is $500,000. Some American States permit a bank with a capital of only 1 per cent of that amount to accept deposits. Undoubtedly the weakness of the American system has been the great number of undercapitalized banks operated by officers with little or no training in banking.

Canadian banks are not only strong, but both the parent institutions and their branches are in charge of men who have been trained in banking as a profession. Banks and branches alike are apportioned to communities according to their legitimate needs. There is no cut-throat competition for business. Instead of paying 4 per cent or more on time deposits and 2 per cent on drawing accounts, as has been the rule in the United States, Canadian banks allow but 3 per cent on time deposits and only a fraction of 1 per cent on demand accounts. Canadian banks are not permitted to make loans on real estate security, the class of loans which has resulted in so many American suspensions because of frozen assets. This class of long-time loans in the Dominion is reserved for the companies that are not required to make demand payments.

There are Western States which have counted nearly 1,000 banks within their borders, a bank for less than every 1,000 inhabitants, while New York had but one bank for every 10,000 of the population. Some of these Western States with incompetently managed small banks have shown a banking mortality of 50 per cent, while in New York it was only 1 per cent. State laws offer too great an opportunity in many instances for the formation of unsafe banks. The present tendency to make membership in the Federal Reserve system more attractive is a step in the right direction. State banks probably can not be eliminated for some time, but national banks will be strengthened by the Glass bill if it is not emasculated by Congress. Federal legislation should be followed up by radical revision of many State banking regulations.

"INDEPENDENT" MANCHUKUO.

Viscount Ishii is en route to Washington to represent Japan at the White House conferences. He is prepared to discuss economic problems in a general way in the hope that he may get an opportunity to present Japan's case in the Manchurian controversy and urge recognition of the new Manchukuo government. The Japanese also hope to learn through this visit what is the attitude of the United States toward the proposed security pact and toward identification of the aggressors in international conflicts.

No doubt the greatest hope of Viscount Ishii is that he can induce President Roosevelt to extend recognition to the Manchukuo government. Japan insists that the territory of Manchuria is now a separate state managing its own affairs. It is supposed to be under control of a government set up by the Manchurian people (with the aid of Japanese arms) and directed by Henry Pu-Yi, of the old Manchu dynasty. But even Japan finds it difficult to maintain that fiction.

A few days ago it was announced by Tetsuzo Komai, Japanese member of the Manchukuo privy council, that the open door to Manchuria would be closed to all countries refusing to recognize the new state. Equal commercial privileges in Manchuria are guaranteed by the nine-power treaty of 1922, to which Japan and the United States and the leading nations of Europe are parties. But this official contends that the new state is not a party to that treaty and is therefore not bound by it. Manchukuo is evidently attempting to assert its independence of action and prove to the world that it has a real government worthy of being reckoned with.

It appears now, however, that the Manchukuo official spoke out of turn. The Japanese government at Tokyo has given the United States formal assurance that the open door in Manchuria will not be closed. What right has Manchukuo officials to say what their policy is to be? Haven't they yet learned that they must do what they are told to do by Tokyo? This little incident illustrates better than all the arguments Viscount Ishii can advance in Washington the true state of affairs in the Far East. Japan sends a representative to Washington to advise recognition of the "independent" Manchukuo government on the same day when Tokyo finds it necessary to rebuke the puppet state for having dared to think that it is free to form its own policies.

It's strange how foreign statesmen returning from Washington are unable to tell their countrymen what happened or what was said. The Potomac seems to be the real River of Doubt.

The Japanese war office is apparently arranging to take Peiping just as Viscount Ishii arrives in Washington to explain that Peiping will not be taken.

Telephone service has been established between the United States and the Philippines, thus facilitating a more complete misunderstanding.

But don't forget that you can pay your income tax, if any, in paper money, if any, and Uncle Sam can't refuse it.

EATS FOR INVALIDS

From the Boston Transcript.

A wise Frenchman who has compiled a book of dietary menus for invalids, imaginary and otherwise, tells them that no diet should be taken too seriously. Not only, says he, is one man's meat another man's poison, but what is regarded as poison by one generation is the nectar and ambrosia of the next. Within 50 years it was common for ladies to decline tomatoes, fresh or canned, stewed or raw or fried, because of a notion that the seeds of cancer lurked in them. It used to be believed that strawberries were bad for sufferers from arthritis. Today, says our Frenchman, the ban on them is lifted.

But, if we are not to take our food too seriously, neither should we swallow the Frenchman whole. There is no gainsaying that strawberries and lobsters affect some people unpleasantly. An innocent Welsh rarebit, if it is followed by a clear Havana cigar, is death in the pot for some. And then there is the diet which, wholesome beyond a doubt, gives no pleasure at the table but rather excites violent distaste. The French author was once persuaded to go in for vegetarianism, just to see if it made a man more humane and kindly and indulgent to his wife; if it opened to him a new heaven and a new earth. For several weeks he frequented a vegetarian restaurant, but, finding that all the vegetarians in the place "quarreled incessantly and were covered with pimples," he concluded that a cheerful temper and good looks were largely the product of fried chicken, Maryland style, with candied sweet potatoes and all the other fixings. This diet he would follow for two or three weeks and then vary it with the more appetizing cuts of beef, lamb and pork. In the season he would have the invalid indulge sparingly or to the limit in brook trout, fresh-caught salmon and bluefish or soft-shell crabs. The main thing is not to follow any prescribed diet until it gags, but to browse hither and yon among all the good things that earth and sea and air provide. There will always be found among them combinations that soothe the most temperamental digestive tract and are at the same time so alluring that they would fetch a Thomas Carlyle at a gallop to the table.

We have with us today the Continental Congress of Economic Reconstruction. It will resolve on everything and leave behind, not a lobby, but a "permanent pressure group."

The farm bill was a world-beater to begin with, but inflation blew it up to a universe record.

Experts say that putting alcohol in gasoline spoils two good products. Of course, we can only speak for gas.

Some of the parties to the tariff truce appear to be conveniently color blind to white flags.

Chicago has three weeks left before opening the fair to pay the teachers. The President might make it a condition of his attendance.

Industry is urged to raise wages with increasing prices, and if the Federal income goes up Uncle Sam's workers will expect him to practice what he preaches.

England provides a billion and a half to pound a peg under the dollar whenever necessary.

As beer flows down, hops jump up 200 per cent.

Industry will feel safer about following the President's advice to co-operate if the projected suspension of the antitrust laws goes through.

"Low dollar has not yet aided our trade with France." And France has taken tootsweet steps to see that it shall not.

A farmers' strike is called in the face of an avalanche of legislation headed in their direction. What can they want that is not going to be forced on them?

Discounting the millennium a bit, the President urges the raising of wages now and tells industry to form a committee of the whole to pull us out of the hole.

"Buy nothing, sell nothing, do nothing," is to be the motto of the farmers' strike—they will just vegetate.

London and Paris hear reports of the Washington talks, and then the chorus shouts: "But what about debts?"

GOOD NATURE.

If you sit out there and mope it is vain to cherish hope.
If you spend your day in whining never broken dream you'll mend.
Though the skies above are drear, it's by faith and strength and cheer
And by everlasting trying that man's troubles soonest end.

Sailors tossed by storms at sea know that every man must be On the decks and at his duty or the vessel may be lost;
And the passengers who wail at the howling of the gale
Are compelled to keep their staterooms till the sea is safely crossed.

So to me this life appears, when come dark and dangerous years,
Not by whiners and by grumblers
or the fearful and afraid,
But by faithful men and true with the grit to dare and do
And the willingness to battle are the better fortunes made.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

MY Dear Louise: I gather from your remarks last night that you intend to smoke sometime just to see what it's like. Well, you won't be the first to play with fire.

Some years ago an archeologist found in Egypt a fragment of papyrus inscribed by an alarmed and resentful parent. I don't remember the exact translation, but it was something to the effect that the younger generation was going to the dogs. It didn't respect its elders; it took no interest in the good old religion; it persisted in violating all of the safe and wise rules.

Human nature, you will observe, hasn't changed much in four thousand years.

The young still delight in thumbing their noses at the old. It is their way of crossing the Rubicon.

You see, having been so long under parental authority, and now at last being aware of approaching maturity and equality, they feel an urge to assert themselves and rebel. They wish to taste the sweets of freedom.

Merely disobeying or disregarding their elders isn't enough. They must also kick the idols of their elders. They must prove their independence by scorning and ridiculing every standard and institution that is dear to the hearts of old fogies.

Eating forbidden fruit isn't wholly a matter of satisfying curiosity. It is a gesture of defiance.

Well, if you feel as youngsters always have, there's nothing I can do about it.

But I would like to give you a word of warning.

There are two kinds of youngsters. One kind, being curious and defiant, says: "I'll do anything once." But the other kind, having self-respect and standards of decency, says: "I'll do anything once—if I don't think it wrong." There is considerable difference.

The policy of doing anything once has an adventurous sound, but it isn't very intelligent. Touching fire but once can't ruin you forever, but it leaves a scar.

That is the point to remember. You can't go back and undo a scar.

One of the old songs contains a line something like this: "The bird with a broken pinion never can soar so high again."

That is the saddest truth known to mortals. A thing that is done is done, and all of our tears and regrets fail to undo it. Immoral dirt sinks so deep that you never can be clean again.

One sin doesn't make you a hopeless sinner, but you never again can be as spotless as you were before you sinned.

Purity is factory equipment, my dear. But you'd better keep what you have. You never can replace it. Love, DAD.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Japan's Position.

New York Herald Tribune.

The statements and interviews that have been given out by Viscount Ishii and members of his staff in Tokyo to herald their descent upon Washington first and the London economic conference later contain no promise that Japan is going to let them be sweetly reasonable. They seem to be starting out with very rigid instructions to make no concession to any one that might compromise the position which the Japanese military have taken in Manchuria and to which Count Uchida at home and Mr. Matsuoka have had to adhere.

It is certainly most charitable to assume that in framing such an approach to the Occident Japan has not yet grasped the fact that, as a flagrant and unrepentant treaty violator, she has forfeited her credit throughout the world and is entitled to no such trust. If that assumption proves to be true when Viscount Ishii arrives in Washington, it will be the present administration's unpleasant but unavoidable duty to make the Occidental view of Japan's position thoroughly clear to the distinguished visitor. While this will certainly make Japan no more obliging as a participant in an arms limitation conference, it will at least relieve Tokyo of illusions about the international standing that her pushful generals have given her; and that may—in the long run, as we have said—be at least one useful result of Viscount Ishii's mission.

Reforming the Banking System.

Minneapolis Journal.

Legislation for changes in our banking system makes slow progress. The Glass bill, passed by the Senate in the last session after long controversy and amendment, has gone no farther. Perhaps it is just as well. Many suggestions worthy of consideration have been made. We are going through a digestive process not unlike that following the financial trouble of 1907. The need for change to prevent recurrence of the currency stringency that disturbed business so greatly at that time was recognized everywhere. But legislative action did not crystallize until 1913 and the Federal Reserve system began operation in 1914.

The economic policy commission of the American Bankers' Association has embodied its ideas in a report just issued. It shows the drift toward greater Federal control, strengthening the membership of the reserve system and other changes that mark a trend away from the traditional individualism and toward greater centralization.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Suggests That Portion of District of Columbia North of Florida Avenue Be Ceded Back to Maryland.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Several months ago there was published in this column a suggestion as to the advisability of having that portion of the original District of Columbia lying across the Potomac River restored to the District by the State of Virginia, which, about 1846, secured from Congress a cancellation of its gift to the United States Government, which gift was made solely to insure the location of the "Federal City" on the banks of the Potomac.

That article did not produce a ripple that would be in evidence in the smallest frog pond.

Notwithstanding that fizzle, another plan of an opposite character is now proposed, which is to have the Legislature of Maryland petition Congress to accord to Maryland the same treatment granted to Virginia, by returning to Maryland the larger portion of the territory it ceded to the United States Government.

The territory donated by these two States comprised an area of ten miles square, such area being considered necessary in order to protect the public buildings to be located in its center from destruction by hostile forces, the range of a cannon ball at that time being less than five miles. Consequently the limits of the "Federal City" were confined to the area south of the Boundary, now known as Florida avenue, and between the Eastern Branch and Rock Creek. After reserving sufficient territory for public buildings and parks, the remainder was divided into avenues, streets and alleys, and the squares within divided into city lots, all of them being sold at auction to interested buyers. These property owners were permitted to organize a city government, with very limited powers. Georgetown continued to control its own municipal affairs, and the outside territory known as the "county" was under the jurisdiction of the Levy Court.

Up to 1874, the United States Government made practically no use of the District of Columbia, except in the area above described as the "Federal City."

The restoration to Maryland of the territory outside of Florida avenue would forever relieve thousands of property owners of the ever-increasing menace of the enlargement of the Harlem Belt, which now stretches from the Eastern Branch to Rock Creek. Making Florida avenue the Maryland boundary line would forever prevent any expansion beyond that line. With the cooperation of such men as Albert C. Ritchie, that great American statesman, now Governor of Maryland; Hon. E. Brooks Lee, whose building up of the Silver Spring area has made it a modern wonder; everybody's friend, "Cy" Cummings, the patriarch of Chevy Chase, a movement could be started which ought to insure favorable action of the Legislature of Maryland in requesting that Maryland should be accorded the same treatment as that given to Virginia in 1846, with the result that thousands could enjoy a voting privilege.

Congress could not stultify itself by refusing Maryland that which it gave Virginia, and the Supreme Court would find its hands tied, because it affirmed the constitutionality of the action of Congress in the Virginia case.

FRANK B. CONGER.

Would Credit War Debtors for Amounts Expended for American Manufactured Goods.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We can afford to be fair with our war debtors, but in order to be just to our children we can not afford to be too liberal.

Why not reduce the debt obligations of our overseas neighbors in amounts equal to or more than those represented by their purchases of our commodities? But purchases mainly of the fabrics of our labor, without depletion of our natural resources.

Thus, if during any year we export $100,000,000 worth of our goods to England, then give England full credit for that amount (or even double) in the reduction of its debt to us. And likewise in the instances of France, Italy, Belgium, Poland, Russia, &c.

A douceur perhaps, or perquisite. But why not?

Trace the effects of such a plan through the channels of employment, good will, taxation, interest, impost and exchange and it might promise well worth trying for a year or two, or until it proves up.

But, whether tried or not, we shall manage! JOSEPH G. KITCHELL.

Women's Wages Wasted on Luxuries, Says Mere Man.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of May 4, "G. P. O." seems to doubt whether the entrance of women into the business world has caused "a serious dislocation of the economic system."

"I am wondering," says G. P. O., "if there is some one among your correspondents who can enlighten the many who want some tangible facts . . . Certainly these new entrants into employment for which they receive compensation have greatly increased their own buying power."

I would suggest that perahps the best way to get the tangible facts would be by applying to Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor. My own thought is that the increased buying power of women has not been so spread as to do the most good. It has been limited to, and to a great extent wasted on a strictly feminine class of purchases—millinery, furs, cosmetics, lipsticks, dance dinners, beauty parlors, cigarettes and things of that kind.

The Meanderer

Finds Window of Wines, Plants for Flower Boxes and Choice List of Meats for Sunday.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extention 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

A window filled with sparkling Burgundy and several types of white wine, with a yellowed wine list from preprohibition days displayed in the center of the group of bottles, is drawing many passersby into one of Washington's best known grocers' shops. Few of the wines on the old list are obtainable, but among the wines ready to sell now are the Burgundy, vin de Sauterne, vin du Rhin and vin du Medoc, or, briefly listed, Burgundy, Sauterne, Rhine wine and claret. So when the hostess plans to order her dinner needs from this favorite old store, she may include on the list some of the white dinner wines, or perhaps the Burgundy for the late sandwich supper.

"Beer chasers" are some new cheese crackers in a generous package from a well known biscuit maker, for 10 cents, also obtainable in the grocery just mentioned.

"Cocktail kernels" are tiny white nut-like crackers from Japan, in transparent packages, so much liked for cocktail parties. Readers may get these delightful bits for use with cocktails and a new pretzel with a cheese flavor in the store selling wine, beer and other things just mentioned. The cheese pretzels are in small, straight sticks packed in large tins for 45 cents.

A justice of the Supreme Court will dine on one of the most impressive meat displays the Meanderer saw in her market tours. It is a crown roast of lamb, properly bedecked with its paper curls, and garnished with decorative strips of carrots and beets. The roast was made ready by a meat marketer well known for his ways with fine meats, whose ability is used by many of Washington's finest cuisines. Estimates for dinner party needs are gladly furnished by this marketer, in person or by telephone. The Meanderer here reminds her readers of several methods of preparing spring lamb which were suggested to her by this meat marketer just mentioned. Such recipes are in printed form and will be furnished on request, and receipt of self-addressed stamped envelope.

Neighboring the market stand where spring lamb is featured, is another meat dealer's place whose business has grown rapidly in the direction of poultry, forcing him to make an enlargement of his shop to care adequately for his poultry business. There only first-class poultry is sold. Telephone orders are taken there for the choicest of baby broiling chickens, 35 cents a pound, weighing a pound or more, or for fryers at the same price per pound, or for fresh-killed turkeys at 30 cents a pound. Orders are accepted and delivered until 9 o'clock Saturday nights in this stand, so that the housewife may protect herself against week-end emergency needs in either poultry or meats.

Okra, the vegetable exalted by Ann Barrett on this page today, is a bit scarce on the Washington market this week-end, although the Meanderer saw it in two places in a market on K street. In one place a pint of okra costs 15 cents, while in another stand it was listed at 25 cents a pound.

Cold tongue, braunsweiger, mettwurst, several kinds of cold ham, knackwurst, choice corned beef and truffle liver sausage are among the cold meats one may order for the week-end or keep on hand at all times for the quick sandwich to go with the almost ubiquitous glass of beer.

Busy, indeed are the flower stands with their bright potted plants for sale for window boxes and for the larger garden. Reliable flower sellers in one market recommend for flower boxes the rosy pink petunias, ageratum or floss flower, geraniums, lantanas, verbenas, wandering Jew and vinca vines. These may be safely put outdoors now. Except for geranium, the plants listed sell at 10 cents each or three for 25 cents. Geraniums are 20 cents, three for 50 cents.

WHAT'S GOOD TO EAT

OKRA A PRIME NECESSITY OF MANY SOUTHERN DISHES

By ANN BARRETT

JUST the other day, Du Bose Heyward, author and playwright, wrote up from the South to tell me the story of his favorite dishes. They turn out to be the Southern soups and stews that boast the delicate flavor of that fascinating vegetable—okra.

So then and there I decided to add another chapter to this story by telling the in's and out's of cooking okra. Especially since it is now available throughout the country, either fresh or canned.

A real okra-lover can revel in this vegetable just fried in a little butter (with cover on pan), or steamed or cooked in a little boiling salted water, and then seasoned with butter. (Choose green young pods, wash them, trim off the ends, then cook them whole or in 1-inch pieces. Only remember not to use an iron pan or they will darken.)

But there are certain good companions that seem to go as naturally with okra as butter does with bread. Tomatoes, onions, garlic, green peppers, parsley, corn, chicken, ham. The greatest of these is the tomato. Many people consider it the okra's perfect mate. If you want to judge for yourself, here's how.

Creole Okra Stew.

Wash 36 fresh okra pods (about 1 pound), and trim off ends. Melt 1½ tablespoons butter, put in okra pods, 3 tablespoons minced onion, ½ section minced garlic. Cook about 5 minutes, letting okra brown but not scorch. Then add 2 cups chopped fresh tomato (or 2 cups solid, canned tomato), 1 cup chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Simmer gently till flavors are blended (about 30 minutes). Slick! Either as a dinner vegetable or main luncheon dish.

Stuffed Okra, Virginia.

For another mouth-watering okra dish, start again with 36 fresh okra pods, washed and trimmed. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan, add okra and ½ cup raw ham cut in tiny cubes. Cook till brown (but not scorched). Then add 1 cup tomato sauce or tomato soup, ½ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt. Cover pan and set in moderate oven (350 F.) for 45 minutes. Then turn this out into vegetable dish and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon minced parsley. Elegant eating especially with roast lamb or chicken.

Chicken-Okra Gumbo.

Speaking of chicken, here's how to team it up with okra in one of the famous Southern gumbos. First, cut up a small chicken (about 3 pounds) as for fricassee. Add enough hot water to cover (about 2 cups). Simmer till tender. Then remove chicken and cook down chicken stock to about 1 cup. Next add to this the following: 2 cups fresh tomatoes cut in quarters, 18 okra pods (washed, trimmed and sliced), 1 cup chopped onion, 1-3 cup chopped green pepper. Cover and simmer till vegetables are tender. Next add 2 cups fresh or canned corn, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Simmer 10 more minutes. Then put in chicken and cook till thoroughly heated through. Serve with rice, baking powder biscuits—and for a final Southern touch, molasses pecan pie.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

W. R. writes: You speak very glibly about taking insulin to get fat. To one who has been trying for years to gain weight this is interesting. How is insulin taken for the purpose? Does one need a prescription or can it be obtained at the drug store? I have a small goiter which the doctor says is not septic and will probably go away. Could this be keeping me thin?

REPLY.

You need a physician's services. Probably you have too much thyroid and that is the reason you are too thin and can not get fat. A metabolism test would help materially to settle that. Let your physician decide whether yours is a case that would be suited to insulin, and how much you should take. The use of insulin increases the appetite. Your physician will advise you how much your new appetite should be indulged. He will also teach you how to administer insulin yourself. Insulin as a fattening agent has had considerable use. It is pretty well established.

ASTHMA.

K. H. writes: 1. Is asthma very serious?

REPLY.

1. There are several kinds of asthma. Some are very serious. Others are troublesome but do not endanger life. There is a marked tendency for asthma to become chronic and that adds greatly to its seriousness.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

I HAVE always liked fringe. It is graceful and lends grace, and as a trimming somehow whispers romance, don't you think? Gold braid does the latter, but in a right out loud way that fringe doesn't.

Fringe has been out of the mode for a long time, and only today really is it chic again. For a couple of seasons tentative efforts have been made to revive interest in it, but it has taken until this season to really prove it smart.

One has to be as careful of fringe as of any other novelty, of course. Too much, and especially too many little dabs of it, is terrible. In fact, that is exactly the reason why it went out of style—too much and too many dabs of it!

Fringe is especially smart this season on evening frocks of the slender, sophisticated type. And, naturally, since fringe is not considered in the best of taste unless it is handmade, it is an expensive affair at best. Tiers and floating panels edged in the fringe are best. Scarf edges, cuffs of gloves, or side fastenings are all fringe trimmed. But so far shawls or capes have avoided the mode, except in the very rare case—which is no indication of the mode, of course, but of individuality.

Short fringe of the same material trims many a summer dress in cotton fabrics, usually accompanied with drawn work. And entire evening gowns of long, supple fringe have appeared—worth a king's ransom and a lovely lady's thought.

* * * * *

And just for all that, I have made you an illustrated leaflet telling you how to make the two different kinds of fringe—the self-fabric one that is of the same fabric it trims, and the silk thread one, like one finds on Spanish shawls. And as though this weren't enough to interest you, I just had to tell you how to make a most delightful sort of trimming with thread-covered hoops. All sorts of trimming and even separate jewelry is made with these rings. You will find that you like this leaflet, so do send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it.

Wear a navy blue coat with white pique collar and cuff on it, and then have a navy blue hat with white pique trim—for chic!

Au revoir!

Culbertson on Bridge

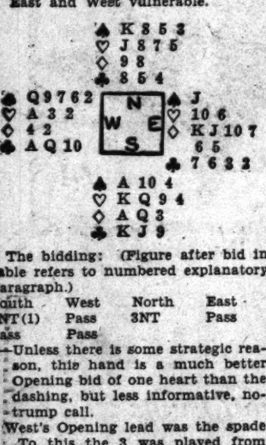
By ELY CULBERTSON

THE RULE OF ELEVEN.

"POST-MORTEMS" are generally valueless, because those who indulge in them are not skilled in the analysis of hands that have been played nor are they always likely, after seeing all the cards, to determine the correct line of defense or attack. However, most bridge players have learned the lesson of the Rule of Eleven, which indicates whenever a lead of a fourth-best has been made, the number of cards higher than the card led not in the leader's hand. Often the application of this rule permits the Declarer to make a contract which he might otherwise lose, or, on the contrary, permits the defending players to defeat a contract which those without knowledge of the rule could not do.

The play of the hand below afforded an opportunity for the correct application of the Rule, which one of the defending players did not apply to the benefit of the partnership.

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

South	West	North	East
2NT (1)	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Unless there is some strategic reason, this hand is a much better Opening bid of one heart than the dashing, but less informative, no-trump call.

West's Opening lead was the spade 6. To this the 3 was played from Dummy, East played the Knave, and South won with the Ace. The Rule of Eleven told South at this point that the spade Knave was the only card of that suit held by East higher than the 6 and that if West led another spade, the Declarer could make 3 tricks in the suit. With this information to guide him, South decided to play for a 3-2 break in hearts, hoping that West held the heart Ace and would continue the suit he had opened. South, therefore, led the heart King, then the Queen, and followed with the 9. West winning the third round of the suit. At this point he returned the spade 2, which South won with the Ten. The Dummy was now entered by leading the heart 4 up to the 8. The diamond Queen was finessed, and when this won, the Ace was laid down. The Dummy was again entered by leading the last spade to the King, and West was thrown in with Dummy's last spade. This forced West to lead clubs up to South's King-Knave. The line of defense adopted permitted South to score game.

West was fond of post-mortems and said that he thought he should have defeated the contract. To this the Declarer replied:

"So you could if you had looked at Dummy, applied the Rule of Eleven and used an exit-card instead of the second spade lead. After partner played the spade Knave, the Rule of Eleven and the rules of good play both told you that I must hold the Ten. Why continue the spades and make me a present of 3 spade tricks? You should have switched to another suit. A good line of defense would have been to take the second heart trick and then exit with the losing heart. Thus played, all I could have taken would have been two spades, three hearts, two diamonds and one club. Against good defense I should not have made my contract, but in Bridge it is just as much a part of the game to take a chance that your adversaries may err as it is to take a chance of making finesses, especially when you know that they are liable to err."

To all of this I say "Amen."

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"TAURUS."

IF May 6 is your borthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:50 a. m. to 10:20 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 5 a. m. to 6:30 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:20 p. m.

Be cautious on this May 6 in all activities physical in nature and do not take any unnecessary risks. Forces operating on this date will be in your favor insofar as matters of a business nature are concerned; in affairs personal, do not allow yourself to be swayed by the personality of another. Do not give your emotions a chance to influence you.

The child born on this May 6 should have good general health during his life. He will be inclined to have a meddlesome and quarrelsome nature which he will have to outgrow if he is to get any place in life. He will enjoy games in which Dame Fortune plays a part and should be careful not to let the "gambling bug" get hold of him.

If May 6 is the date of your birth you are more than likely a person who is highly sensitive and emotional. It is possible that you are very high-strung and you should guard yourself against giving way to fits of temper. You are possessed of a warm heart and you are very kindly in your attitude toward others. You are ever on the go, and usually striving for something that the average man would feel was beyond his attaining; but you enjoy the battle, and the more difficult the task or the more hopeless the situation, the harder you work to accomplish your task. Most any line of work can be handled by you with the exception of teaching; you do not have the patience to instruct others. You most likely allow yourself to be annoyed when children are about.

Born on May 6, you are a person who likes to see progress and improvement and you endeavor to use whatever means you have at your command toward bettering living conditions, conditions in schools and other institutions, &c. Both sexes are fond of public work; they enjoy the publicity and get no end of pleasure from seeing their names and pictures in the papers. They are fond of money, spend it wisely and always seem to have a dollar or two put away for a rainy day.

Successful people born on May 6:
Abraham Jacobi, physician.
Henry Fairbanks, cleryman and inventor.
Mary C. Ames Hudson, journalist and author.
Philander C. Knox, lawyer.
Robert E. Peary, Arctic explorer.
William Edmund Scripps, publisher.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

Shirred puffed sleeves are introduced in this design with a most pleasing result.

For all its smartness, it's exceedingly simple. It's a one-piece affair! Inverted tucks made the bodice "fitting" at the waistline, and snug at the hips. They're decorative too. All you've to do is to add the sleeves and the collar and it's finished.

While hyacinth-blue crinkly crepe silk made the original frock, other shades, as carrot-red, spring-green, gray, prints, etc., would look lovely too.

Style No. 3401 may be had in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36 and 38 inches bust.

Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 35-inch material, with ⅞ yard of 39-inch contrasting. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

Our new Fashion Magazine for spring contains all of the new spring styles for women, misses and children, as well as interesting illustrated articles—Beauty Hints, Hairdressing, How to Reduce Sensibly, Poise as an Aid to Fashions, Dressmaking Hints, &c.

Just write "Fashion Magazine" on any piece of paper, inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin and mail your order to Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

MAKING CLOTHES.

A WHOLE generation of girls who revolted against the boredom of plain sewing has grown up hating to sew and helpless with a needle.

It may be logical to begin sewing with fine seams and perfect hems on towels and dusters, but few modern girls take readily to such drudgery.

When the girl is little she wants to learn sewing as an incidental part of the process of making a dress for her doll.

The crudest first results happily arrived at here are better than much finer ones achieved without pleasure; for work done without pleasure is continued only under compulsion.

A little older, the child begins of her own accord to compare her work with that of others. She begins taking pains, but she keeps her interest as long as she is permitted to work with materials and colors which please her and to make things of her own choosing.

An adolescent girl, who had never been interested in sewing and who seemed to be hopelessly awkward where skill of hand was required, took up sewing with enthusiasm when she discovered that she would be able to make her own clothes.

Enrolled in a dressmaking course, she made herself, for very small cost, a number of dresses which satisfied her craving to be stylishly dressed and to have as many different dresses to wear to school as other girls in her class.

When a girl shows no desire to learn to sew from a mother who has always been a skillful dressmaker, it is better to send the girl to a dressmaking school as was done with success in this instance.

The fact that she has not learned in the past is an indication that excessive criticism and too much urging and supervision have taken the joy out of learning with mother.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

An elaborate system of microphone points has been devised in order to bring to the radio audience all excitement characteristic of the Kentucky Derby today (WJSV and WRC, 5:45 p. m.). In addition to pick-up positions in a special booth on top of the grandstand and in the steward's pavilion at the finish line, where the thundering of the horses along the homestretch will be heard, concealed microphones will be at various points among the crowds in order to catch the cheering.

Thomas Bryan George, racing critic, will describe the race proper for WJSV, while the pageantry will be depicted by Ted Husing.

The race will be described on WRC by Clem McCarthy, racing expert, while Graham McNamee, veteran sports announcer, will comment on the colorful crowds at the track and the various entries.

Representative Michael J. Hart, of Michigan, will talk on "Inconsistencies in Appropriations and Legislation" when he is heard on the American Taxpayers League program tonight at 6 o'clock over WMAL.

A lesson in sportsmanship will be given by Francis Hunter, former national doubles champion and former indoor singles champion, in a special Boys' Week program to be presented over WMAL at 4 p. m.

THE Postilion, latest news from The Washington Post, will be heard tomorrow night at 10:15 instead of at 10 o'clock. The change is for Sunday night only.

WOL features today will include the Nordica Mandolin and Guitar Orchestra under the direction of Walter T. Holt at 5:45 o'clock and the Union Mission Glee Club at 8:30 o'clock.

The concluding talk in the series presented over WJSV under the auspices of the Washington Chamber of Commerce will be heard Saturday at 7:30 o'clock, Eastern standard time. Wilbur W. Langtry, sales manager of the District of Columbia Paper Manufacturing Co., will speak on "The Paper Manufacturing Industry in Washington."

Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, heads a group of speakers to be heard over WMAL at 10:30 o'clock this morning, as they address the Continental Congress of Workers and Farmers here.

In addition to Mr. Thomas, who was Socialist candidate for President in the last national election, speakers will include Senator Lynn J. Frazier, of North Dakota, and John Simpson, of the Farmers' Union.

THIS letter signed "C. K. M." was received yesterday by Harry C. Butcher, of Columbia, manager of Station WJSV:

"Now that your winter programs of symphonic music are completed I can not refrain from this expression of my appreciation of what you are doing for music lovers within the range of your broadcasts, from the humblest to the most exalted. Never before, I think, have those simple people of this country whose souls thirst for what is spiritual and creative in music, but whose pocketbooks are limited, had such an opportunity. I believe there will come a day when, through just such agencies as yours, our national life will have become so enriched that we shall leave off the cheap and the vulgar, in which so much of our emotional demands find expression, and attempt to find satisfaction now.

"By this I do not mean to wholly decry 'jazz' or any form of modern musical expression which is truly creative, or which is truly music; but only to say that common ideas and ideals, vulgar suggestions to our receptivity, in whatever form, coarsen our whole nature, mental, moral, spiritual, material. If we could continually feed our people on beauty, teach them to appreciate it, we should never fear that they would remain indecent.

"Few people who deeply appreciate the best of the great symphonic programs you give them will ever write you of their pleasure. We do not rush into expressions of gratitude easily. It is only because of this that we are outnumbered in those who write you.

"I hope that next year you will give more great works. The outstanding works, to my mind, in this last season were concertos, piano concertos, which many simple but music-loving people never have the opportunity to become acquainted with. Gieseking, with the Boston Symphony, in Mozart's Concerto in C Major; Horovitz in the Beethoven "Emperor" concerto, with Toscanini, and the Tschalkowsky Piano Concerto No. 1, with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, were outstanding performances."

ACKNOWLEDGING the above letter and outlining some of his plans for classical music for next season, Mr. Butcher wrote:

"It is such expressions as yours, few as they are, that keep the better music on the air. You will be pleased to know that we have again contracted for the New York Philharmonic Sunday afternoon broadcasts for next season, beginning October 8 and ending April 29. The length of the season has been increased to 30 weeks and six concerts for children and young people, under the direction of Ernest Schelling, will be broadcast on Saturday mornings.

"Bruno Walter, distinguished German maestro, will direct the first part of the season and Arturo Toscanini will return for his ninth consecutive year to conduct the second part. We also hope to have the Philadelphia Orchestra."

The annual dinner of Sigma Delta Kappa, national law fraternity, will be the occasion for a special program tonight over WMAL at 9 o'clock. Senator Richard B. Russell, jr., of Georgia, and Senator Frederick Van Nuys, of Indiana, will speak.

SENATOR M. M. LOGAN, of Kentucky, will discuss "Difficulties in Government Economies" in an address over WMAL at 10 o'clock tonight.

The Sunday school lesson, "The Cost of Greatness," will be given by W. W. Millan, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association (WMAL, 5 p. m.).

Mrs. John S. Sheppard, only woman member of the New York State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, will discuss "The Future of Repeal" over WRC at 4:30 p. m.

The Boswell Sisters are still on the road and their program over WJSV at 8:15 p. m. will come from Minneapolis.

Pet Shops Attract.

Gazing up Madison avenue in the Forties, one will notice at least a half dozen groups of people blocking the sidewalks. By those groups you can locate the pet shops in that section. A show window full of playing puppies is a never failing stop signal for passersby.

A frequent stroller along Fifth avenue is a Persian fellow attired in striped trousers and cutaway coat. But atop his head is perched a gray wool turban, Cossack style.

When Francesco von Mendelssohn, grand-nephew of the composer, sailed from New York the other night, his friends brought a portable pipe organ onto the pier to serenade him in farewell.

It's Roller Skating Time.

These being the days when robins are flitting about among the arbutus (that doesn't sound right, but you get the idea), the debutantes are taking up roller skating in a serious way. Central Park is crowded with the darling daughters of Park avenue as they roll along the sidewalks in the Mall, usually ending with a tumble that is more painful than graceful.

I bumped into two of them. Theresa Townsend and Joan Hamilton, the latter the brunet daughter of Cosmo Hamilton. They even had their special pajama costumes, which have sort of a split skirt effect so the skater, or skatee, doesn't get all tangled up in her clothes when she falls. Very nice, indeed, but I suggested they would be more apt if upholstered with a couple of sofa pillows.

There is a gray haired, little woman, a double for Tom Sawyer's aunt, who frequents the West Forties. She carries a bundle of pamphlets and always hands one to any young man she sees smoking. The pamphlet contains an essay on the evils of tobacco.

She handed me one the other morning. I very gratefully took her advice, for at the moment I was dutifully trying to puff away at an insufferable piece of rope, a present from a traffic cop pal on Sixth avenue.

A New Yorker At Large

By MARK HARRON.

NEW YORK.—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff:

The arrival of 3.2 beer solved a chronic worry for the National Arts Club, that gallery in Gramercy Park where are exhibited the works of both ancient and modern masters.

One of the rooms has walls of gold leaf and to preserve this glistening tint it is necessary to wash the walls periodically with beer. Near beer won't do; it must be the real stuff. So with the coming of the new brew, the walls will have their first bath in years.

Street scene: Frances Perkins window shopping along Fifty-seventh street on Easter Sunday afternoon. Practically every passerby recognized her. It's almost impossible not to, what with that famous tricorn hat.

Prof. Harold O. Whitnall, head of the department of geology, discovered that the screws holding the glass in the case had been removed but that the intending lifter of the huge "nest egg" had become alarmed just in time to prevent the theft.

Ann Harding Provides For Sailor's Survivors

Havana, May 5 (A.P.).—Ann Harding and Alexander Kirkland, motion picture celebrities who had a narrow escape from death when their sailboat capsized off Jaimanitas, Wednesday, have contributed $5,000 to a fund for the family of the Cuban sailor who died in the accident, it was learned today.

The sailor, Majin Alvarez Tuero, was killed by sharks when he attempted to swim ashore for help for the party.

Perfect Pinochle Hand.

La Salle, Ill., May 5 (A.P.).—A pinochle player for 25 years, I. J. Hybki last night held a perfect hand. He was dealt a meld of 1,500 in clubs and two aces of diamonds. He took every trick and scored 1,750 points.

Stocks Continue Advances As Dollar Declines in Value

Market Weathers Heavier Profit-Taking; Sales, 4,996,720 Shares.

New York, May 5 (A.P.).—Stocks and commodities forged ahead today under the impetus of a declining dollar. Shares had to contend against a huge volume of realizing which eventually ate deeply into extreme gains of 1 to more than 3 points; a few leaders closed with small losses and net changes were mostly fractional.

Utility company equities had their turn at leading the stock market, whereas rails and industrials lagged a bit.

The light and power group, on the whole, is still considerably under its year's high, whereas the other two major groups have been establishing new tops with some regularity. Today the industrial and 90-stock composites went through their previous highs.

Issues Display Strength.

Issues displayed intermittent strength. Motors were active but met harder resistance. U. S. Steel sold at 49¾, the highest this year, falling back for a small net loss as traders took profits.

Case, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, Woolworth, Standard Oil of California, American Tobacco "B," Westinghouse, United Fruit, American & Foreign Power, International Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Atlantic Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Atlantic Refining, Goodrich, Union Pacific, Macy, Coca Cola, Louisville & Nashville and Great Western Sugar finished fractions to about 1½ higher.

American Telephone was boosted by word that business of a leading subsidiary, as well as of its own long lines division, was somewhat better, though the shares' extreme rise of more than 2 was reduced to half a point net.

With turnover at 4,996,720 shares, the market plainly showed no signs of slackening its furious pace of the last two weeks, a period, incidentally, which has seen almost no technical correction. Commission house commentators are wondering whether prices will be able to pierce the upper level of last autumn's upturn.

Pound Goes to $4.

Sterling exchange had an early rise of 8 cents to $4, the best price for the pound since Great Britain went off the gold standard in September, 1931.

While our money's discount in relation to foreign gold currencies approached 17 per cent, President Roosevelt's speech in Washington last night did not touch on currency matters; perhaps Europe had thought he would do so. At any rate, operation of the British stabilization fund seemed to have been held in abeyance for the moment.

Wall street looks for a favorable carloadings statement tomorrow. Whether last week's traffic actually passed that of 1932 is doubtful, for several large Eastern roads have not caught up to last year's mark; however, and disparity in the aggregate is expected to be small.

The Dun & Bradstreet Weekly Review reported an appreciable broadening in wholesale and retail trade, adding that improvement was Nationwide. How long the buying movement will last is unpredictable; absence of increased purchasing power the survey pointed out, "is tempering enthusiasm regarding consumption prospects in the immediate future."

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Base metal shares and oil stocks were the bright features of a fairly active session on the stock exchange today. Transatlantic issues improved ⅛ to ¾ points on Wall street and continental support, while German and other foreign bonds recovered somewhat on repurchases. British issues were dull owing to a slackening of investment buying. The market closed steady.

Paris—Influenced by favorable Wall street advices, and the rise in raw materials and commercial products, prices on the bourse gained briskly in an active session. The closing was firm.

Berlin—Prices moved irregularly on the boerse.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for May 3 were $74,-923,407.40; expenditures, $208,224,852.84; balance, $591,567,545.47. Customs duties for three days of May were $2,330,919.00.

BONDS RIDE HIGHER ON RAILS' ADVANCE

Full Point Gain Recorded as Turnover Rises to $19,081,000.

New York, May 5 (A.P.).—The bond market took a fast ride on the rails today, carrier maturities both of high and low degree advancing 1 to 5 or more points in an unusually active session.

The average for 60 domestic corporate loans was up a full point, the best day's gain since March 16, while that for the carriers reached a new 1933 high. Sales totaled $19,081,000, par value.

The utilities, which have been lagging recently, were not far behind the rails and the industrials gave a good account of themselves. United States Government securities were mildly irregular and mixed prices ruled in the foreign department.

Thirteen-Year Rule of Price Drops Seen Fulfilled Again

Chicago, May 5 (A.P.).—Some coincidences of recent economic history stood out in bright relief today.

For this is the thirteenth anniversary, said Franklin Hobbs, Chicago economist, of the start of the recent great price declines.

And the three previous price decline periods as far back as the American Revolution have lasted around thirteen years each, he asserted.

The last period of falling values for all the raw materials which go to make up modern commerce and industry began, Hobbs said, May 5, 1920.

It started that day with a slightly noticed drop in sugar quotations. Sugar fell within a week 5 cents a pound.

Other raw materials followed suit and continued to recede from post-war valuations, Hobbs said, until wheat quotations reached lows not touched since the Middle Ages in England.

CURB PRICES HIGHER IN SPITE OF SELLING

Profit-Taking Cuts Gains; Sales Volume Rises to 640,000 Shares.

New York, May 5 (A.P.).—Shifting trends and increased volume reflected considerable profit taking in today's curb market, but in the aggregate, the list scored considerable further progress.

Prices were higher at the opening and then receded somewhat to again strengthen around midday. Heavy buying in utilities featured the early afternoon trading, although advances of fractions to 2 points were reduced at the close.

Electric Bond & Share advanced beyond 20 at one time for a gain of a point, but this was halved at the finish. Mining shares enjoyed a firm finish. Industrials and specialties were somewhat irregular, although gains predominated.

Volume expanded to 640,000 shares against 463,000 yesterday.

Loans to Brokers $51,000,000 More

(Associated Press.)

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ended May 3 were announced by the Federal Reserve Board yesterday as $512,000,000, an increase of $51,000,000 compared with the preceding week.

The loans for the week ended May 4, 1932, were $499,000,000.

WHEAT VALUES SOAR ON HIGH WAGE PLEA

New Tides of Buying Start After Roosevelt Speech; All Grains Up.

Chicago, May 5 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt's higher wages plea received credit among grain traders as doing much to start new tides of buying that swept prices sensationally upward today.

Wheat, corn, oats and rye all outdid record high prices for the season, and closed at virtually the day's top, rye up as much as 4½ cents a bushel overnight, and corn about 3 cents. Including today's advance, the rise in corn alone, if applied to the amount of grain estimated as held on farms April 1, would apparently mean an increased return of more than $200,000,000 for the producer, with an additional $100,000,000 or more as a result of the upturn in wheat and oats.

Despite tremendous selling to realize profits, wheat closed buoyant, ¾ to 1⅝ above yesterday's finish; rye, 2½ to 4½ up; corn, 1¾ to 2⅞ advanced; oats, showing ½ to 1 gain, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 12 cents.

All Grains Climb.

From the outset, wheat and every other grain displayed notable upward momentum. Inflation buying, so-called because of its huge aggregate of small-sized orders, seized hold of wheat first, and at times became even more pronounced in corn.

Jumps in securities, cotton and silver had preceded the opening of the grain markets, and were noted especially by wheat traders, who, however, attached yet greater commodity inflation significance to soaring of British exchange to above $4, up 9½ points.

Many patrons of one of the largest grain houses in Chicago acted on a bulletin suggesting they could "forget all previous grain experience, as we are definitely launched in new and uncharted waters."

Public Buying Corn.

Public buying of corn today reached the largest proportions in a long while. Extraordinary delays to corn planting have resulted from cold wet weather over a wide area, and this, with the fact that the corn market of late had failed to advance as rapidly as wheat, gave corn the leadership during much of the day.

Reports of big shipping sales of corn here were also a stimulus, one concern alone being reported as having disposed of 900,000 bushels to the East. Fears were expressed that owing to planting delays, a large part of the 1933 corn crop would be endangered by the silking and tasseling season being simultaneous with a period of extreme heat and lack of moisture.

Rye owed its unusual upturn to indications that the supply of that grain in Chicago was concentrated in strong hands, with some speculators in a tight position.

Oats were strengthened by reports that in many sections further seeding was impossible owing to adverse field conditions.

Among the many other factors which tended to hoist grain values was word that Russia, usually an exporter, had purchased two cargoes of wheat from Argentina. There were also assertions that wheat export interests were big buyers of wheat futures at Winnipeg, taking about 4,000,000 bushels.

Provisions were responsive to the upward course of cereals.

TRADE TRENDS.

(Associated Press.)

Wool goods—The market, dealers report, has two strong supporting elements in a good demand for fall lines and a well-cleaned-up condition in stocks. Some mills are said to have sufficient orders to warrant full working schedules through the early part of the summer.

Tin—Current price levels are the highest since April, 1930. Trade reports indicate the continued fair buying on the advance.

Corn sugar—Another advance of 15 cents a hundred pounds extends the rise in this commodity since the end of March to 45 cents. It is largely used by rayon plants.

Rice—Reports to local dealers indicate a strong and active market in the South, reflecting a good domestic and export business.

COTTON PRICES RISE TO NEW HIGH GROUND

July Sells at 8.54 With General Market Up 24 to 25 Points.

New York, May 5 (A.P.).—Cotton prices worked higher today on a continuation of the recent buying movement, relatively steady Liverpool cables and the action of the grain and stock markets.

All positions made new high ground for the movement with July selling up to 8.55 in the late trading and closing at 8.54. The general market closed firm at net advances of 24 to 25 points.

The opening was 18 to 20 points higher on active general buying promoted by the advance in Liverpool and the further depreciation in the dollar as measured by the advance in sterling exchange.

May sold up to 8.39 and October to 8.76 on the initial demand, making net gains of about 21 to 22 points which attracted a good deal of realizing. This coupled with some Southern and Far Eastern selling supplied the early buyers and caused reactions of about 10 to 12 points from the best during the forenoon.

The buying continued, however, and the market reached the highest prices of the day in the late trading when May sold at 8.42 and October at 8.80, or 25 to 27 points net higher. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best.

22 NAMED FOR DERBY TODAY ON MUDDY TRACK

Classic Due To Draw 30,000

Ladysman Is Favorite in Wide-Open Race for $60,000.

Trace Call Is Out; Head Play Sold to Mrs. Mason.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

LOUISVILLE, May 5 (A.P.).—The popular belief that the fifty-ninth running of the $60,000 Kentucky Derby tomorrow will be a wide-open race, already increased by prospects of a heavy track as well as the presence of a well-matched field, was emphasized today as owners dropped the names of 22 crack 3-year-olds, an unexpectedly large number, into the entry box at Churchill Downs.

If they all paradod to the post around 5:30 p. m. (Central standard time) in quest of the rich prize, the record field of 1928 would be equaled, but at least four or five and possibly seven horses will be scratched before the bugle calls.

Meanwhile, with today's track sloppy from a heavy overnight rain and another shower expected before clearing weather sets in for Derby day, the owners took no chances and put all possible racing resources into the lists. William R. Coe, of New York, whose fragile Ladysman continued to hold the place of favorite, and Col. Edward Riley Bradley, famous Kentuckyan who has won three derbies, each posted three entries.

Each May Withdraw One or Two.

Coe named Ladysman, Pomponius and Pompoleon, all sons of Pompey. Bradley entered Broker's Tip, Boilermaker, a son of Bubbling Over, conqueror of Pompey in the 1926 Derby, and Fingal, a Sir Gallahad III colt. Each probably will withdraw one or two colts by tomorrow.

Providing the minimum field of 15 goes to the barrier for the test of 1¼ miles, the race will be worth $50,450 to the winner, with $10,000 more distributed among the next three finishers. To the victor also will go the wreath of roses and a $5,000 gold trophy to be presented to the lucky owner by Postmaster General James A. Farley, of New York.

In the draw for post positions today, the twin hopes of East and West—Ladysman, winter book favorite, and Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play, choice of the "hardboots"—turned up with "naturals." Ladysman, in the No. 7 spot, from the pole, and Head Play, No. 11, convinced the more superstitious of their followers that luck so far was with them.

Head Play was bought late today by Mrs. Mason from Mrs. William Crump, of Nashville, for $30,000 and a percentage of his possible Derby winnings.

Charley O's Chances Are Hurt.

On the other hand, the draw struck a blow at the chances of Charley O., Florida Derby winner and well-backed entry, owned by Mrs. R. M. Eastman, of Chicago. Picked by many experts to run one-two because of his stretch qualities and known liking for a heavy footing, Charley O. had the misfortune to draw the No. 2 position. Regarded as a slow starter, anyway, Charley O. probably will have the additional handicap of getting away from the pole position, inasmuch as Pompoleon, which drew No. 1, is not expected to be started by the Coe stable.

Hard luck also continued to pursue the Audley Farm, whose promising candidate, Trace Call, developed a high fever overnight and had to be declared out of the race. "Buddy"

BRAVES BEAT CUBS IN 11TH BY 2 TO 1

Betts Starts Rally to Break Up His Duel With Root.

BOSTON, May 5 (A.P.).—Walter "Huck" Betts, Boston Braves' right-hander, today started an eleventh-inning rally to break up his pitching duel with Charlie Root and gain a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

With the score at 1-all and one down in the eleventh, Betts drove a line drive to right field, went down to second on Bill Urbanski's single, and scored the winning run when Jordan Baxter connected for the third consecutive safety off Root in that inning.

Both twirlers worked effectively, but Root had the best of the going up to the eleventh. He held the Braves to 5 hits up to that point and had 6 strikeouts and no passes. Betts did not give a base on balls but fanned only 3 of the Cubs, who also totaled 8 hits. Both teams played errorless ball.

Whitehill and Fischer to Oppose

Pitchers Who Switched Uniforms Named for Today.

Nats Accompanied to Detroit by Bad Weather Jinx.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
(Sports Editor The Post).

DETROIT, Mich., May 5.—This fellow Rain, who shut the Nats out twice in Cleveland earlier in the week, bobbed up here today with his no-hit, no-run, no-game performance and, according to the local weather bureau management, is selected to go right back to the box tomorrow in an effort to score his second straight over the combined efforts of the Nats and Tigers.

The Nats this week have had about as much action as King Tut. They have played one game since Sunday and, with the weather what it is around the shores of Lake Erie, will be fortunate to get in one game of their three-game series with the Tigers. Joe Cronin's lads, who won the lobby-sitting championship of Cleveland, are punishing the armchairs in their hotel here at a rate that should win them the Detroit title by the time the week is over.

Cronin has announced that Earl Whitehill will pitch for the Nats tomorrow, and Bucky Harris has indicated that the Detroit selection is Carl Fischer, but with old man weather still making faces at the entire Midwest, the next question before the house seems to be the pitchers for Sunday, if any.

Family Reunion At Hotel.

Fischer, one of the few southpaws with the Western clubs, is a Washington alumnus and Whitehill, equally left-handed and more highly rated, is a former Detroit favorite, although 'tis said no particular favorite of Manager Bucky Harris, who divorced Whitehill from the Tigers last winter on account of incompatability.

The Nats' hotel this morning was the seat of an old family reunion, with Bucky Harris, Fred Marberry and Fischer dropping in to greet their former pals with handshakes all around, including Clark Griffith, against whom they bear no malice although Griff cut them loose from a first division club.

Fischer reported himself in great shape and eager to show Griffith the latter's mistake in permitting him to get away from the Washington fold. Bucky Harris is predicting stardom for the big left-hander here, although the Nats themselves have reason to suspect that the fellow has talent.

Won Next Day For Browns.

The Washington club remembers the day last summer when Fischer was traded to St. Louis along with ($20,000 for Dick Coffman, only to pitch for the Browns the next day with Coffman in the box for the Nats, and what Fischer did to the Nats was puh-lenty, including a 1-to-0 victory for St. Louis.

Despite the rain, Manager Cronin had his men out to the ball yard this afternoon for a two-hour workout, and noted among other things that Bucky Harris has erected a 20-foot screen atop the 20-foot wall in left field which used to be such a prolific incubator of home runs.

Harris admitted that the erection of the screen was a brain child of his own, due to the dearth of hard-hitting right handers on the Tiger roster. Some day when the Tigers are equipped with sufficient right-handed batting power, that screen will be torn down. But thus far it has proven a noble experiment, holding Frank Crosetti's home run to a double and enabling the Tigers to win a 2-1 game from the Yanks.

Griffith to Leave At Detroit.

Owner Griffith, who is making the Western trip with the club in the hope of seeing the boys play ball some more after their victorious stand in the East, is rapidly being disillusioned as a result of the three postponements thus far. He will quit the team here to attend the regular spring meeting of the league magnates in Cleveland next week.

There is no reason to suspect that Griffith's first trip West has any motives other than his attendance at the Cleveland meeting. With the release of young Bud Thomas, the Nats are down to the 23-player limit which goes into effect May 15, and Griffith has given no intimation of further releases. The trading limit does not expire until June 15, but the Nats' numerous trades during the off season and their lack of trading material is seen as precluding any further changes in the club roster.

Helen Jacobs Wins Match in England

Bournemouth, Eng., May 5 (A.P.).—Helen Jacobs, champion first ranking tennis player of the United States, today defeated Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, third ranking British star, 9—11, 6—1, 15—13, in a fourth-round match of the British hard-court championship, which was halted yesterday by rain.

The women were 10-all in the third set yesterday when a shower terminated the hard-fought match.

By her victory Miss Jacobs joined Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, in the semifinal round. Mme. Mathieu yesterday eliminated the former English champion, Betty Nuthall, in straight sets.

The British championships are Miss Jacobs' first tournament of the year. She plans to play also in the French championships and at Wimbledon before returning home to defend her American title, which she won last year for the first time.

U. S. Netmen Win in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, May 5 (A.P.).—With an ease that called for little in the way of fancy tennis, Wilmer Allison and Clifford Sutter launched another United States drive toward the goal of regaining the Davis cup from France today by sweeping the first pair of singles matches in the opening round of the North American zone play with Mexico.

Unhampered by the high altitude, Allison steadied after dropping the first set of his match with Dr. Ricardo Tapia, best of the Mexican singles forces, to win easily, 4—6, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4. Sutter, former Tulane collegian from New Orleans, gave an inexperienced youth, Esteban Reyes, a tennis lesson, winning the second match 6—1, 6—0, 6—1.

The matches were played in the morning at the Club Deportivo in an effort to avoid the afternoon heat While the results were generally as expected, a large crowd was somewhat disappointed in the caliber of the play.

The United States now needs only one more victory to clinch the series, and is a heavy favorite to gain that tomorrow, when George M. Lott, jr., and John Van Ryn team against the Mexicans in the doubles play. The Mexican pair have not yet been named.

Phils Option Brickell, Willingham and Butler

Philadelphia, May 5 (A.P.).—Fred Brickell, outfielder of the Phillies, who had a row with Manager Burt Shotton this week, was released on option today to the Kansas City Club of the American Association.

At the same time it was announced that Infielder Hugh Willingham had been released to the same club, also on option. Charles T. Butler was sent on option to the Albany Club of the International League.

Turner Suspends Burns for 30 Days

Joe Turner, Washington's one-man athletic commission, slapped a 30-day suspension on Referee Cyclone Burns yesterday for incompetent work in the Ernie Dusek-Gino Garibaldi match Wednesday night. Turner decided urns had exercised poor judgment in permitting Dusek to pin Garibaldi immediately after the latter had been freed from a tie-up in the ropes.

Coming in the midst of preparations for Ernie Dusek's bout with Jim London next Thursday, news of the suspension caused quite a stir around the Hotel Annapolis lobby, where the mat artists are wont to put strangle holds on the easy chairs.

Garibaldi will wrestle on the same card, meeting Dick Raines in a 45-minute semifinal. Of the three preliminary bouts only one has been arranged. Eli Fischer and Lou Plummer will furnish the fireworks in this.

CON AMORE OUTCLASSES SPRINTERS IN PIMLICO FEATURE

6-Year-Old Carries 120 Pounds

Robertson Coasts to Victory; Place to Sugar Cake.

Two Jumping Riders Hurt; Condition of One Serious.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 5.—Con Amore, J. W. Y. Martin's useful mare, gave away from five to eighteen pounds here this afternoon and made a show of her field to win the Arlington, a 6-furlong sprint, generally looked upon as the day's feature race. The mare was opposed by one 4-year-old and four 5-year-olds and the youth of the party never had a chance. With the wise-headed Albert Robertson in the saddle, Con Amore had a margin of three lengths over Sugar Cake at the finish and the latter was another half length in front of Illusive.

Kakapo was first to show in front, but it was evident that Robertson, laying second with Con Amore, was only waiting to say when. The big mare began to narrow the margin on the swing around the far turn and was in command entering the stretch. Meanwhile, Kakapo suddenly folded and Sugar Cake won the closing dash for second money.

Apparently due to the anticipated short price on Con Amore, no show mutuels were sold on the race. Thus the track escaped the necessity of making up any deficit that might arise from paying $2.20, the lowest price allowed under the present system.

Con Amore Pays Only $2.80.

Con Amore was played from the rockbound shores of Maine to the sunswept plains of East British Africa, and when everything had been said and done she paid off at a $2.80 mutuel.

The track remained fairly fast despite the drizzle which clipped the attendance to some 6,500.

Two injuries marked the day after the death of Buddy Hanford. W. Moals, a steeplechase rider, received a probable fracture of the collarbone and a bruise over the right eye in the steeplechase. Earlier, Harry Hunt, 27-year-old steeplechase rider, suffered a dislocated cervical vertebrae near his neck, when a horse he was schooling pitched him out of the saddle.

Red Run followed Rock Sun most of the 6 furlongs of the first race and then exchanged places at the finish to pay off with a $7.60 mutuel. Wickcliffe came up to take the show from Paint Box.

Johnny Gilbert rode Monastic to victory in the second race, winning by a half legth margin from Stimulaw with Hair Trigger third. Inspection led for 2 furlongs, but after that the race was a romp for Gilbert and his mount. Three boys were called to the stands due to a jam that occurred soon after the break, but the official light was soon turned on.

Indigo, the aged son of Stefan The Great and a luke-warm favorite under the stands, annexed the steeplechase in which a field of 13 went to the post. Indigo, ridden by Mr. R. W. McKinney, led Hamptonian home by three lengths while Mr. G. H. Bostwick and Silverskin were third. There was a different horse in front at every call. Northwoods, Sardaneza and Silverskin each had a fling at pacesetting. In fact, Silverskin appeared to be the winner with only one jump to go, but Indigo, restrained for most of the trip, was turned loose and he went over the last jump to stay in front. Indigo paid $7.60.

Monel was backed into favoritism in the fourth race, but the Labrot filly failed to handle Night Patrol. Monel went to the front at the break and stayed there until the far turn, where Night Patrol slowly, but surely, cut down the margin, The Fire Under gelding was soon in front and coasted home a winner by five lengths. Monel was an equal distance in advance of Idealist, the third horse.

Flying Hour coasted to victory in the sixth race, winning by four lengths from Euryalus, with Too Late third. Mills had the mount and led from start to finish. Flying Hour was the choice.

In the seventh, Fluffy Lee upset Surety, which was second, taking the race by a neck in a drive that began at the sixteenth pole. Third money went to Gramarye.

Modern Times accounted for the eighth. Polar Brush was second and Bubola third.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED RUN, $7.60, $5.00, $4.60; ROCK SUN, $3.40, $4.80; WICKCLIFFE, $12.00.

RED RUN, kept close to ROCK SUN and having good speed, gained command inside the closing furlong and strongly ridden thereafter, came away slowly. ROCK SUN, hustled to the front, served stound and then responded willingly when placed to punishment. WICKCLIFFE challenged stoutly when midway of the turn, but tired gradually thereafter when securing racing room on the inside. PAINT BOX moved to the leaders with a rush leaving the back stretch, lost ground and tired in the final quarter mile. FAIR BILLY raced in spots. FELICIANA was never a factor.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MONASTIC, $16.60, $7.20, $4.60; STIMULAW, $5.00, $4.60; HAIR TRIGGER, $4.40.

MONASTIC reached the leaders rapidly soon after the break, moved clear under strong handling when midway of the home stretch, but had to be vigorously ridden to stall off STIMULAW. Latter, squeezed back directly after the start, secured racing room on the inside rounding the turn and came determinedly at the finish. HAIR TRIGGER, forced out rounding the turn, finished gamely when clear. INSPECTION, rushed hard to take early command, faltered steadily under punishment. DONTARA, blocked leaving the back stretch, went wide to secure racing room thereafter, but could not reach the pacemakers. TO ARMS bore out rounding the turn.

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming handicap. The Garry Owen Steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:11. Two-dollar mutuels paid—INDIGO, $7.60, $4.60, $3.40; HAMPTONIAN, $7.00, $5.80; SILVERSKIN, $3.80.

INDIGO, always in a contending position, was steadied to all of his fences, came stoutly when put to strong pressure in the last half mile, wore SILVERSKIN down at the last fence and drew out smartly. HAMPTONIAN, reserved to the first mile, entered contention when saving ground on the inside of the leaders and came fast through the late stages. SILVERSKIN, under strong restraint for the first turn of the field, displaced the early leaders when ready, but tired suddenly in the last three furlongs. DRAPEAU rested into the air at the start, met with interference going to the first fence, fell and unseated rider. PRO BONO showed a good test all the way. HATBROOM suffered interference. DANNY BOY raced well. NAYLOR and HIEAWAY were used up early. MUSKOGEE fell at the eleventh jump.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:11. Off at 5:15½. Winner, Mrs. C. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLUFFY LEE, $13.00, $4.00, $2.80; SURETY, $2.80, $2.40; GRAMARYE, $2.80.

FLUFFY LEE, working her way up on the outside of the leaders, engaged GRAMARYE for the lead midway of the final turn and continuing with excellent courage after gaining command, just lasted to stall off SURETY, who was unable to stay with the winner challenged. IDEALIST came through on the inside during the stretch turn, and outfinished ALL ROWES. Latter, raced well placed, but was tiring in the final test. UNENCUMBERED was steered very wide into the home stretch. BURNING FEET and AIR PILOT met with no excuses.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CON AMORE, $3.80, $2.40, out; SUGAR CAKE, $4.40, out; ILLUSIVE, out (no show mutuels).

CON AMORE, outclassing her company and rated close to KAKAPO, wore the latter down when ready and came away without urging at the end. SUGAR CAKE, ridden hard all the way and saving ground until reaching the home stretch, swung out into the firmer footing and held on well. ILLUSIVE outrun, worked her way up on the inside to outfinish KAKAPO. Latter had smart speed until straightened into the home stretch, then tired. CREAKY and MINTIE were overmatched.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. The Hilltop. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:42. Off at 4:46. Winner, Mrs. W. M. FLYING HOUR assumed command shortly after the break, displayed good speed while resisting contention from EURYALUS in the first five furlongs, and then came away without effort during the final furlong. EURYALUS, always closest to and entered contention when saving ground on the inside of the leaders and came fast through the late stages. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLUFFY LEE, $13.00, $4.00, $2.80; SURETY, $2.80, $2.40; GRAMARYE, $2.80.

FLUFFY LEE, working her way up on the outside of the leaders, engaged GRAMAYRE for the lead midway of the final turn and continuing with excellent courage after gaining command, just lasted to stall off SURETY, who was unable to stay when the winner challenged. IDEALIST came through on the inside during the stretch turn, and outfinished ALL ROWES. Latter, raced well placed, but was tiring in the final test. UNENCUMBERED was steered very wide into the home stretch. BURNING FEET and AIR PILOT met with no excuses.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. The Herring Run. Start good from gate. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:45. Off at 5:46½. Winner, L. M. Miner's br. m. (5), by Futud—Margaret Lawrence. Trained by R. L. Riles. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:41 2-5, 1:54 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODERN TIMES, $6.20, $3.40, $2.40; POLAR BRUSH, $4.40, $2.80; BUBOLA, $2.40.

MODERN TIMES, followed close to the leaders, came to the outside when drawing into the thick of contention, then finished stoutly on the outside to win under stiff urging. POLAR BRUSH, rated along with BUBOLA, challenged strongly when leaving the back stretch, and fought it out stubbornly all during the stretch run. BUBOLA, rushed hard to take command going to the first turn, was taken under mild restraint while setting the pace, but weakened slightly during the stretch drive under the whip.

AT THE POST

DEAR AL: PIMLICO RACE TRACK, MAY 5.

Jimmy Sullivan, the Washington boy, who is essaying to go places as a jockey, is improving. Yesterday Jimmy was suspended by the Pimlico stewards for rough riding in the second race. From where we sat, it looked like Jimmy was only trying his darndest to get a horse home and that another boy caused the jam. Jimmy is on the ground for the meeting. A more serious charge was placed against Jockey John Kacala. He has been set down pending an investigation of the unsatisfactory race of the horse Burning Feet. Three winners for B. B.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—ICICLE appears to be as ideally placed in this jumping race as was Indigo yesterday. Gets in with a steadying impost and is a keen fencer. BANDIT looks second best to me. JACK ANTHONY for the show end.

SECOND RACE — SWINHAVEN stands out in this group especially when his clever works of the last two weeks are considered. Has been running in classy company. INTEGRITY is a contender. ELECTRIC GAFF has been trying for a long time to escape the maiden ranks.

THIRD RACE—BRANDON MINT is due to be shipped to New York shortly, and I understand they want a purse before he leaves. Mighty fit now despite that apparent shortness the other day. MERRILY ON gave Fairbypair a whale of a race and figures to be up front tomorrow. STAR PORTER has speed and may take it all.

FOURTH RACE—LADINO will get the track he needs tomorrow, from all indications, and should take care of MEXICO and VISHNU.

FIFTH RACE—MATADI drops a large chunk of weight for this race and holds a lot of promise. This is the spot. GARLIC and FOXIANA for the rest.

SIXTH RACE—I'm taking CANRON in the feature race. She has worked in smart fashion, as I told you before. Will appreciate the off track. TRED AVON, second to Equipoise upState, should take the place. SWEEPING LIGHT'S recent fine efforts may mean the show money.

SEVENTH RACE—FLAMING MAMIE drops four pounds and proved her worth in the mud the other day. ULUNIU comes off sprints and may be the one to beat. GENERAL LEJEUNE gives weight which may make him third.

EIGHTH RACE—WHITE THORN is a pretty fair sort on an off track. True, he tackles older horses here but I can get him off the top. NIGHT PATROL, if sent back, would be dangerous but likes the mud none too well. ANNIMESSIC goes alumming and should make his presence felt.

912 Golfers On List for Open Play

Total Is 100 Below '32; Qualifying to Start May 15.

NEW YORK, May 5 (A.P.).—Acceptance by the United States Golf Association's cup committee of several entries not technically meeting all requirements today raised to 912 the number of golfers entered for the open championship to be played at Chicago June 8, 9 and 10. The lists closed May 2.

The total is 100 under last year and the smallest since 1927 when 698 entered for the qualifying trials, but considerably greater than the other prebloom years. The record entry list was in 1930 when 1,177 entered. Bob Jones won his last open title that year and retired from competition.

Most of the country's leading players, amateur and professional, and including the defending title holder, Gene Sarazen, are among the 912, of whom 879 must fight it out in sectional trials for the 117 vacant places on the championship list of 150 who will play at Chicago.

33 Automatically Qualified.

Sarazen and 32 of the 33 next highest to him at the end of the 1932 tournament are automatically qualified for the title rounds. Jose Jurado, the little Argentine pro, who finished sixth last year, did not enter.

The qualifying rounds, except at Los Angeles, will be played May 15 on 20 sectional courses. The play at Los Angeles will be May 11.

With the books finally closed on entries, the task of sorting them by districts and alloting qualifying places was begun and the various districts will be notified in the next few days of their quota. Qualifying places are allotted according to entries received.

The qualifying sites are Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Oreg., Omaha, Dayton, Ohio, Buffalo and Nashville, Tenn.

HOUGHTON-THORN WIN, 1 UP

Rally Defeats Shorey and Carson

Kenwood Pro Leader With 68; Shorey Has Par 70.

WITH a thrilling finish, Al Houghton, Kenwood pro, and Arthur B. Thorn celebrated the opening of the new Anacostia golf course yesterday by defeating Mel Shorey, of East Potomac, and Bill Carson, home pro, 1 up, in their 18-hole exhibition match played during a drizzle. Houghton and Thorn are to meet Sarazen and Kirkwood in an exhibition match for charity tomorrow at Kenwood.

Shorey and Carson held the whip in the match by 1 up and three holes were left to play, when Houghton and Thorn fought back. Houghton's 30-footer on the sixteenth for a birdie 2 won the hole, and Thorn's birdie 3 on the seventeenth, after canning a 10-footer, shot the Houghton-Thorn combination into the lead.

Houghton's Approach Factor.

On the eighteenth, Shorey was on the green nicely with his drive. Houghton was trapped and Carson and Thorn failed to reach the carpet of the short hole that is very deceptive. Houghton niblicked out of the trap to within 3 feet of the hole, and holed his putt for his par to gain a half and clinch the match.

As usual, Houghton set the medal pace with his 34, 34—68, 1 below par; Shorey had a 70, Carson a 71 and Thorn a 74. Houghton and Thorn had a best ball of 64 and Shorey and Carson a 65.

A crowd of 500 followed the four players. The pros were loud in their praise of the course, which was designed by P. H. Lightfoot.

Rain Limits Chevy Chase Doubles to Few Matches

JUPITER PLUVIUS wielded his racquet long enough yesterday to put an abrupt stop to all but three matches in the annual Chevy Chase invitation doubles tournament, preventing such famous tennis personalities as Manuel Alonzo, Frank Shields, Lester Stoefen and Watson Washburn from playing.

Weather permitting, the tournament will be resumed this morning at 11 o'clock, with play in the finals to be carried on through Sunday.

Twelve teams are competing for the championship. According to the draw, Shields and Alonzo, teaming together, are ranked at the top of the bracket, with Stoefen, and his partner, Watson Washburn, former Davis cup player, as the other seeded team occupying the lower bracket. The two teams automatically went into the second round.

In the only three matches of the day completed, Steward Young, of Newark, and George Bodman, of New York, defeated Sam Hardy, of Connecticut, and Walter Pate, of Locust Valley, L. I., 6—2, 3—6, 6—4; Edward T. Herndon and Cedric Major, both of New York, conquered J. Mersereau, of Yonkers, N. Y., and Tom Beardsley, of New York, 6—4, 7—5, and Charles Garland, of Chicago, and Dean Mathey, of Princeton, N. J., defeated Louis de Olivares, of the Spanish Embassy, and Harvey Williams, of New York, 6—2, 6—2.

Gene Sarazen Invades D.C. Tomorrow

Joins With Kirkwood in Opposing City Pros for Needy.

WASHINGTON'S first big exhibition match of the season to be staged for charity at Kenwood Country Club tomorrow, with Gene Sarazen and Joe Kirkwood playing against Al Houghton and Arthur Thorn, is in the hands of the weather man. If the weather is favorable, every indication points to one of the largest galleries ever seen on a Washington golf course.

Rains of the last few days have improved the Kenwood course greatly, according to Houghton, who is the Kenwood pro. Houghton and his partner, Thorn, are getting in daily practice and while they have nothing to say regarding their chances, club members who have seen them work are speculating as to the ability of Sarazen and Kirkwood to "take" the Washingtonians.

Many Inquiries Are Received.

Inquiries regarding the match have been received from every country club in this vicinity, including several of the Baltimore clubs, and the surprising fact is that almost as many inquiries come from the women golfers as from men. The large number of the fair sex who play golf points to a large number of them in the gallery tomorrow.

The match, from which all proceeds will be devoted to the relief of unemployment in Washington and vicinity, will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock and will be preceded by an exhibition of trick shots by Joe Kirkwood, champion trick shot artist of the world. Tickets will be in charge of Miss Katherine Dunlop, president of the Junior League, assisted by a group of Junior Leaguers and officials of the club. The tickets, at $1 each, are tax exempt because of the charity feature of the match.

Georgetown Nine Meets Navy Today

Georgetown's revamped baseball team travels to Annapolis today for a tiff with the slugging Midshipmen. The game will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Coach Clayton Sheedy shuffled the Hoya deck vigorously during the last week in hopes of obtaining better results. Capt. Bill Rapp has been moved over from the hot corner to shortstop and Bill Carpenter, erstwhile pitcher, assigned to third.

Gallaudet's Track Team Makes Debut

Gallaudet College's little publicized track team makes its initial appearance of the season today on the Kendall Green oval, where it will play host to the invading sprinters of Randolph-Macon.

22 TO FACE TEST IN DERBY CLASSIC

Hanford, the jockey who was to have had the mount in the Derby, was killed yesterday in an accident at Pimlico, and Trace Call was so ill today that the colt could not even be taken from his stall for a walk.

Still looking for opportunites to discount the chances of Ladysman to win, early railbirds came away from today's workouts further convinced that the Coe Stable's Pomponius had a better chance than the favorite to lift the big prize. The critics still believe all sons of the sprinter Pompey, are handicapped for the distance by breeding. Pomponius, however, displayed speed as well as liking for the heavy footing this morning. The colt breezed three-eighths in 65 4-5 seconds, the half in 48 2-5, while Ladysman went the same distance in 51 3-5 after negotiating the three-eighths handily in 37 3-5.

Head Play's Blowout Disappointing.

Head Play's "blowout" also was a bit disappointing, more because of an apparent distaste for the going than the fact the colt was clocked in 51 3-5 for a half and 1:06 for 5 furlongs.

Most Kentuckians who haven't already put their wagers down on Head Play think Col. Bradley's colors will furnish the surprise of the Derby. They know how often he has upset the dope, as recently as last year when his Burgoo King easily beat the heavily-favored Tick On. Broker's Tip already has been backed by Bradley followers to hand Ladysman the same treatment, but that may not be enough to win this year.

There are enough good horses in the 1933 field to give one and all a brisk run for their money, whether it is only for a $2 bet in the mutuels or a "play" across the board by the heavy gamblers. Not much has been wagered in the future books, despite the short book price of 3 to 1 today on Ladysman, but $300,000 or more may go through the machines on the big race tomorrow.

Head Play, Ladysman, Charley O and Broker's Tip may get the bulk of the mutuel "play," but those who figure their "hunches" as well as the form sheets and expert selections will have wagers down on F. A. Griffith's Speedy Sarada, a fine finisher; the Catawba Farm's Mr. Khayyam, strong son of the 1917 Derby winner; the mud runners, Spicson and Silent Shot, among others.

30,000 Expected To See Classic.

Louisville has played host to much bigger crowds and freer spenders in the boom times, when as high as $2,000,000 passed through the mutuels on Derby Day, but there was no lack of enthusiasm as a big crowd poured into the Downs this afternoon with the sun out again and a brisk breeze blowing. Upward of 30,000 are expected tomorow, when the turf aristocracy of the East and West, the beauty and chivalry of the Old South, leaders of business and government, mingle with the plainer race-following gentry in the Amrican turf's most colorful setting.

The big delegation from the Nation's Capital includes Postmaster General Farley and James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President. Governors of several nearby States, including Henry Horner of Illinois, will be among the guests of Ruby Laffoon, Kentucky's chief executive. John F. Curry, leader of Tammany Hall, headed a big contingent of New Yorkers, while big names of the turf and society were listed by the score among boxholders.

Official Party Is Off For Kentucky Derby

As guests of Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky a group of high-ranking administration officials and Democratic party leaders left Washington on board the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad's crack train, the George Washington, for Louisville, where they will see the fifty-ninth annual Kentucky Derby.

Included in the group were Assistant Postmaster General Silliman Evans, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lewis W. Roberts, jr., Robert Jackson, secretary of the Democratic national committee; Jed Adams, member of the Board of Tax Appeals; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the World War President; Amon Carter, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Robert H. Gore, Florida Democratic leader, and Ambrose, special assistant to Postmaster General Farley.

Davis-Antonelli Arouse Interest

Not since Henry Irving and Young Van were matched the first time has there been as much local interest aroused in a boxing match as the meeting Tuesday night between Nick Antonelli and Roddy Davis, which goes as the semifinal to the Sarron-Paul battle at Portner's Arena.

When Davis took a close decision from Tex Mills, Norfolk slugger, and Nick followed this with a victory over Willie Essenger, the fans began asking for a match between the two.

This is really the first break Nick has had here in over a year and he means to cash in a hundredfold at the expense of the Capital Limited, who has built up a great following.

Bobby Cleary, a stablemate of Tommy Paul, meets the rugged Jimmy (Kid) Smith in the six-round main preliminary.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

THE impossible is possible when you know how. Ask a friend this question: "Can you take a handkerchief, grasp the opposite corners one in each hand, and without releasing either corner, tie an overhand knot in the handkerchief?" The answer will invariably be "No."

More than 100 educated persons answered thus to the same question when they were asked by an eminent scientist. But it can be done—simply by tying the arms in a knot before grasping the handkerchief, then slipping the knot onto the cloth. Here's how:

Stretch the handkerchief out by its diagonally opposite corners, and lay it on a table near the edge. Then fold your arms so that the left hand extends over the right arm, and the right hand extends under the left arm. Stoop over the table and grasp the right corner of the handkerchief between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, and the left corner of the handkerchief similarly with the right hand.

Now simply stand up and unfold your arms without releasing either corner. The knot will be tied as shown in the drawing above.

Of all the players in the Professional Golfers Association tournament in 1920 who qualified for the championship play, it remained for a golfer who did not qualify to win the championship. Jock Hutchinson, Glen View pro, did not qualify, but was allowed to take the place of another player who qualified and failed to appear. Hutchinson won the championship, defeating J. D. Edgar, Atlanta, one up.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE GARBLE SISTERS.

"WHAT'S all this stuff about the gold clause?"

"I dunno exactly. It's something about a clause on money and bonds to pay off in solid gold, and the United States is not going to pay any attention to it."

"Was it written in plain English so everybody could understand it?"

"That's what the newspapers say, but I guess it was just like the clauses in life insurance policies—nobody ever reads 'em until it is too late to win the argument."

"Was the gold clause on all bonds and money?"

"I wouldn't say positively, but from all the fuss that is being made I wouldn't be surprised if it was on I. O. U.'s, gas bills and lottery tickets."

• • • •

"Why ain't the Government paying in gold if the contract says so?"

"Washington needs the gold for inflation."

"How can the gold be used for inflation?"

"The Government buys up all the gold and holds it until the price comes back, like it did on wheat."

"How can anything happen to the price of gold? Gold is gold, ain't it?"

"We got an overproduction of gold. We produced so much gold in the boom years that now Europe can undersell us."

"So what?"

"So we forget all about the gold clause and put in a clause paying off in fiat money."

"What is fiat money?"

"You remember that old automobile called a Fiat, don't you?"

"Sure. My sister has one 11 years old."

"Well, fiat money is what you could get for it if she had to sell it today."

• • • •

"What is all this talk about printing new money?"

"All I know is that there is a bill before Congress giving the President power to establish a big printing plant where new money can be printed."

"Where is this plant to be located?"

"Muscle Shoals."

"How are they gonna get experienced men to print all the new money?"

"They're operating training camps now where young men are taught to print it."

"Where are they?"

"They're in the woods some place. I think they call 'em Federal reinanctation camps."

"Oh, you mean commodity market?"

"Yeah."

FOR ONCE.

I'd like to go
To a movie show,
And have in front
A little runt.

JOE BEAMISH.

PRELATES ADDRESS CATHEDRAL LEADERS AT ANNUAL PARLEY

First Lady Accepts Place as Honorary Chairman of Committee.

The annual meeting of the National Cathedral Association of Washington Cathedral was held at Mount St. Alban yesterday with a number of members present from other cities.

The meeting began with a business session in Whitby Hall at 2:15 p. m. with an opening address by Bishop James E. Freeman. This was followed by brief informal addresses by Mrs. Frederick W. Rhinelander, daughter of the late Right Rev. Henry Yates Satterlee, first Bishop of Washington, chairman of the New York committee of the National Cathedral Association; the Dean of Washington, the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl; William R. Castle, jr., chairman of the cathedral council committee on ways and means, and by reports of committees.

Dean Bratenahl Speaks.

In his address Bishop Freeman announced that Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt has accepted an appointment as the honorary chairman of the national woman's committee of Washington Cathedral.

Dean Bratenahl described the progress in cathedral building during the past year, pointing out that the structural part of the north transept had been completed, work had been done on the south transept, the east cloister walk had been finished and the rose window, depicting the "Last Judgment," installed in the north transept, and that a number of other windows were in the course of construction. The reredos in the Chapel of St. Mary is also in place, it was stated.

Secretary Reads Report.

Miss Sally Phillips, secretary of the Washington Cathedral committee, read the report of that committee for the year.

Members of the national women's committee in Washington for the association meeting attended special service in the Chapel of St. Joseph of Arimathea at 11 a. m., and afterward went to a luncheon at the Sulgrave Club.

Bank Holdup Suspects Held in $10,000 Bail

John J. Cahill and Abraham Raifer, alleged participants in the robbery of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank here last month, were held under $10,000 bail each yesterday in Philadelphia for preliminary hearing there next Friday.

Witnesses to the robbery of the bank, in which $7,640 was taken, will testify at the hearing.

Woman Succumbs At Prayer Service

Mrs. Koehlerschmidt to Be Buried in Baltimore; Family Survives.

Mrs. J. G. Koehlerschmidt, 67, of 1707 Columbia road, died suddenly Thursday night while attending prayer services at Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church.

She had entered the church when she collapsed in the hallway. A doctor, her husband and the fire rescue squad were summoned. She was pronounced dead by Dr. I. M. Alpher upon his arrival. Death was ascribed to heart disease.

She is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Elsie Holtgreve, of this city; two sons, Robert F., of Washington, and Charles G., of Baltimore, and three grandchildren. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Interment will be in Baltimore.

Federal Dismissal Wages Are Asked

Bill in House Would Pay Those Discharged in Reorganization.

Representative Schulte (Democrat), Indiana, yesterday asked a dismissal wage for Federal and District employes discharged under the economy and reorganization programs, in a bill introduced in the House.

Compensation under the proposal would be based on length of service and average pay during the last year. It would be retroactive to April 1, and would apply to anyone having a year's service.

Under the Schulte bill, the part of an employe's salary in excess of $3,600 would not be used in computing benefits. The dismissal wage would cease if the employe got another job or was reemployed in the Federal service.

City Refuses to Interfere In Laundry Competition

The District Commissioners yesterday declined to become embroiled in a controversy between Laundry-Dry Cleaners Association and certain independent truck drivers who make a habit of taking business away from the laundry's own drivers.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and the license committee held that these independent drivers have the right to compete with the laundries' own agents and that the householder has a right to send his laundry where he wishes. The independent drivers operate on commissions.

DEPOSITORS BACK REOPENING PLANS

Three-Fourths of Shares for New Stock Secured at Franklin Bank.

Enthusiastic approval upon the part of depositors of a plan for reopening Franklin National Bank was announced yesterday by officials of that institution.

Many depositors called at both the main office and branch office of the bank yesterday to sign agreements, it was said. Later depositors will be circularized with the completed plan in detail, and as soon as their assent is secured this plan will be submitted to the Treasury Department for approval.

George F. Hoover, a vice president and conservator of Northeast Savings Bank, reported yesterday that close to 7,600 out of 10,000 shares of new stock desired to reopen that institution had been secured to that date.

A campaign of larger colored churches of the city for sales of stock to reopen Industrial Savings Bank, only colored banking institution in the city, as a national bank, was announced yesterday by W. H. C. Brown, president and conservator of the bank.

Weekly meetings will be held at churches to secure stock subscriptions. Following a meeting held at Metropolitan Baptist Church, of which the Rev. E. S. Smith is pastor, a goal for this congregation was set at $10,000 worth of stock, Mr. Brown said. This meeting was addressed by Prof. Jesse H. Lewis, head of the department of commerce and finance, Howard University, and W. L. Carter, cashier of Industrial Savings Bank. More than $53,000 worth of stock already has been subscribed toward a $200,000 capitalization.

Carman Is Cited In Contempt Case

Horse Trainer Subject to Jail Sentence Unless Alimony Is Paid.

Richard F. Carman, jr., well-known race horse trainer, yesterday was ruled in contempt of court for his failure to obey an order of the District Supreme Court that he pay his first wife, Mrs. Angela Roach Carman, $200 a month maintenance for herself and their two children.

Justice Joseph W. Cox, in the District Supreme Court, held that Carman was in contempt after Mrs. Carman's attorney, John Paul Jones, offered evidence to show that the husband was employed by H. Keller Archibald as a trainer of horses and had raced six horses of his own under the names of other persons.

Carman, now in Baltimore, where he is staying while the Pimlico races are under way, was given a sentence of 30 days, which he can purge himself of if he pays up the alimony. Since he is out of this jurisdiction, the marshal in Baltimore will have to act after the proper papers are made out here.

JUNG EXHORTS GOOD CITIZENSHIP IN U. S.

Those of Italian Descent Can Bring Honor to Mother Country, He Says.

Stating that by being good citizens of this country Americans of Italian descent bring honor to their mother country, Signor Guido Jung, Italian minister of finance, greeted members of the Lido Civic Club at a reception in his honor last night at the Mayflower Hotel.

Accompanied by the Ambassador of Italy, Signor Augusto Rosso, the Italian official asserted he had come to this country on a mission of good will. He exhorted citizenry of Italian descent to support the President, who he asserted is doing everything in his power for the good of the Nation and of the world.

Greeted by members of the club with the Fascist salute, he told them they represented in a physical way the deep feeling of amity and friendship of this Nation toward Italy. He was introduced to the club by Dr. Raphael N. Manganaro, president of the group.

Dr. Manganaro stated that the presence of Signor Jung in this country was evidence of Italy's sincerity in aiding President Roosevelt in his quest for world peace and prosperity. Signor Jung commended several members of the club who were wearing World War decorations. Mrs. Ethel Bonuso sang selections.

ADEQUATE TRAINING IS 'NEW DEAL' NEED, CONFEREES RESOLVE

Society Must Pay Ultimately for Incomplete Program, Report Reads.

At the conclusion of a detailed report of an emergency program in vocational education, the Citizens Conference on Vocational Education and the Problems of the Present Crisis, closing its sessions at the Willard Hotel yesterday, went on record as "believing that a system of education carries out the spirit of the 'new deal' only when it provides adequate vocational training service for the rank and file of our citizens and their children."

"Ultimately," the report read, "society must pay in dollars and cents for an inadequate and incomplete educational program."

"We do not need the labor of children when millions of men and women are out of work," Secretary of the Interior Ickes told the conference in an address.

"This is peculiarly the time," he said, "when every effort should be made to hold back the flood of young people into industry, where they would have to compete for jobs when there are no jobs.

Wants Arts Given Place.

"The educational program of the future in order to meet the needs of youth who can not find work in industry must be enriched with industrial arts in the grades and the high schools."

"A period of the highest degree of civilization known to man will follow the depression," John B. Colpoys, editor of the Trade Unionist, told the conference. Before this, he said, there will be a temporary period of reduced standard of living.

More than 36 national organizations were represented at the conference, which was held under the joint sponsorship of the American Vocational Association, the American Council on Education and the National Education Association.

Senator's Wife Speaks.

Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, wife of the senator from Colorado, addressed the conference on "What the Future Home Requires of Vocational Education."

Other speakers were Miss Kathryn McHale, director of the American Association of University Women; Louis Taber, of the National Grange; Layton S. Hawkins, of the New York Adjustment Service, and Charles A. Prosser, Dunwoody Institute of Minneapolis.

Certificate of Suicide Issued in Gas Death

A certificate of suicide was issued last night in the case of Francis E. Wood, 26, found dead from gas in the vacant side of a double house at 3001 Fourteenth street northwest, yesterday morning.

Wood, who lived in the other half of the house, went next door late Thursday to clean up after the departure of tenants.

He was found by his mother, Mrs. Mamie Wood, on the floor of the kitchen with four jets of the stove wide open. His mother told police that he had been despondent as he had been out of work for some time.

District Bill Faces Conference Delay

Action May Not Be Taken Until Middle of Next Week.

The District appropriations bill passed early this week by the Senate, probably will not go to conference with the House until the middle of next week, House Appropriations Chairman James P. Buchanan said yesterday.

Representative Buchanan said the House probably will not appoint conferees until the independent offices bill, scheduled for consideration Monday, is out of the way.

Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, who blocked passage of the District bill last session, will be one of the conferees, Mr. Buchanan intimated. Representative Blanton, who has been out of the city, will return today.

Police said the man toppled over backward while being booked, but was apparently unhurt in the fall. An inquest will be held today.

PRISONER IS SAVED FROM POISON DOSE

Man in D. C. Jail Rushed to Hospital When He Tells of "Mistake."

Sentenced to an indeterminate period of from one to two years in jail, following his plea of guilty to a charge of sending threatening matter through the mails, Alfred D. Brockenborough, colored, yesterday was rushed to the hospital after he told inmates of the cell block at the District jail that he had taken poison.

Futile efforts were made by Deputy United States Marshals to pull from the man's mouth anything that he might have taken. When Brockenborough admitted to Chief Deputy Marshal S. B. Callahan that he "might have taken poison by mistake," he was rushed to the jail hospital for emergency attention. Brockenborough did not appear any the worse for the experience.

Brockenborough is the first man to be sentenced here for violation of the new "Lindbergh law." He pleaded guilty to sending a threatening missive to John R. Hawkins, colored, prominent in political, civic and business affairs.

BARRY SENTENCED TO 3 TO 15 YEARS

Maximum Term Under New Law Meted Out to Seigel's Slayer.

Joseph T. Barry, convicted of manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Israel Seigel, yesterday was sentenced to three to fifteen years by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue in District Supreme Court.

The sentence was the maximum under the new indeterminate sentence law. Barry, with a previous conviction for embezzlement, was indicted for first-degree murder. The jury found him guilty of manslaughter.

Barry contended that he shot Seigel in self-defense as the latter sat in a grocery truck at 3130 Eleventh street northwest last December.

The shooting was brought about by the alleged attentions Seigel was paying to Barry's common-law wife, Mrs. Ruth Goebel.

GOVERNMENT GAINS FEE SIMPLE TITLE TO DISPUTED LAND

Important Decision Saves Condemnation Process for Driveway.

In a memorandum opinion filed late yesterday by Justice Jennings Bailey, in the District Supreme Court, the United States Government was declared to be the owner in fee simple of a disputed tract of land jointly claimed by the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal and several others.

The decision is highly important, since a finding that the land belonged to others than the Government would have meant expensive condemnation proceedings would have to be instituted to complete proposed extension of the Rock Creek driveway.

Take Immediate Possession.

The disputed area lies between Twenty-eighth street, the present bank of Rock Creek, and it extends from the south line of I street to the center line of K street northwest. Under Justice Bailey's ruling the land will be immediately taken over by the Government for park purposes, there being a partially constructed bridge now on an adjacent lot.

Through Henry H. Glassie and Wilson L. Townsend, special assistants to the Attorney General, the Government contended the land had been made without authority upon the submerged bed of what was the Potomac River at the date of the cession of the District of Columbia. Work done by the canal people virtually placed the land on Rock Creek, which is nonnavigable, and which therefore would give the land by accretion to riparian owners.

Search Back to 1837 Made.

Land records dating back to 1837 and before were searched. The C. & O. Canal, it was held, had forfeited any easment it might have by abandonment of the canal. Several persons who have had homes on portions of the land for 40 years and more were given the right to present to the court auditor evidence of the value of improvements, such as buildings, and the filling in of land, so that they could be compensated for them.

The ruling will save the Government a huge sum that would have been necessary for condemnation work.
